U. S. DEFIES EUROPEAN BLOC ON DOLLAR

Today

Whose Dollar Is It?
Men Manage Badly.
That Marvelous Atom.
Still Three-Score and Ten.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ASSOCIATED PRESS dispatches from London say, "The French insist on pegging the dollar."

WHY? We did not insist on pegging their franc when they cut eighty per cent from its value, thus reducing their internal debt four-fifths.

We did not insist on "pegging" or otherwise interfering with the pound sterling when it slid off the gold basis. We let the British attend to that.

Why must Europe manage our money? Why can't we attend to our own business? Why must we send people to London to find out what Europe wants us to do?

THE BANK OF ENGLAND and the Bank of France have given up the attempt to "steady the dollar," temporarily at least, leaving it to stagger along in its own way.

They would like to steady it, because a cheaper dollar might mean too much buying of goods in American markets. But to steady the dollar you must buy it and keep the price up, as compared with European currency, and that might cost money.

JUST WHAT the American dollar will do nobody knows at present. Those that are in debt hope it will go down, creditors and government bond owners hope it will go and stay higher. Sensible Americans will try to gather it in, knowing that whatever it does, it will be the BEST MONEY, because you can buy with it anything in the United States.

WITH MILLIONS all over the earth lacking clothing, production of cotton is to be cut down by taxing those that buy it from the farmer and manufacture or "process" it.

With hundreds of millions hungry and lacking wheat all over the world the acreage of wheat is to be cut down by taxing the farmers' customers that "process" the wheat.

It cannot be helped, for evidently men know how to grow, but we do not know how to distribute. The human race manages its affairs badly.

SCIENTISTS gathered in Chicago for a two weeks' session are "deeply buried in the mysteries of the atom," figuratively speaking. A scientist could have a million extra atoms in the corner of his eye, not noticing them.

Science, taking no account of bigness or littleness, finds the atom, its electrons circulating around the nucleus, as planets circulate around our sun, more mysterious and puzzling than our solar system. The nucleus, or proton, that seemed so simple when science first discovered it, is now thought to be made of eight different elements.

SOME "HAMMER" to break open the atom, some way of harnessing the terrific power within it, is the object of scientific research.

The spectroscope shows that elements making up the earth, some ninety odd, gold, silver, iron, etc., also exist in the sun. It may be discovered that the inconceivably small proton, the atoms' "sun," is as complicated as any giant star.

THE GOVERNMENT "Research Committee on Social Trend" tells you that babies, children and younger adults live longer now than they used to live. But their elders' length of life is about the same. When the human machine reaches the Biblical three-score and ten it usually breaks down. But there is comfort for the three-score and ten army that was not known in ancient days when eye glasses and false teeth were unknown.

PRIAM was probably not more than fifty, probably younger, when he went to beg Achilles for the body of his son, Hector. He suggested to Achilles that he might also have a father "on the hateful road of old age." That age came early then, when there were no false teeth or spectacles, no doctors to regulate blood pressure. Now a man of Priam's age might be on the pleasant road to St. Moritz or Reno.

THE DEPRESSION has reached Africa, according to the Rev. Joseph McCaba, of the Christian African mission at Nyamnyam. Wives that sold before the depression at $100 can now be bought for $12, and "no reasonable offer refused."

The Rev. Joseph McCaba finds it hard to preach monogamy convincingly under such conditions.

With wives $100 each, African husbands who consider four wives a minimum would usually wait a while after a wife died before getting another. Now, taking advantage of bargains, they get the new wife immediately.

YESTERDAY as the dollar dropped in Europe stocks went up in Wall street from two to nine dollars. As the dollar goes down stocks go up. If the dollar continues going down, or stays as low as it is, good real estate will gradually go up even higher than stocks have gone.

Financial genius can print as many hundred million shares of stock as the public will buy. But it can't create any additional corners of Forty-second street and Fifth avenue or Fifty-seventh street and Park avenue, in New York, or extra corners of Broad and Market streets in Newark, N. J., or add to the length of State street, inside the Loop, in Chicago.

TWO 'STEAL' HOSPITAL PRISONER

Patients Intimidated as Pair Carries Away Gangster Suspect

The daring of Cicero gangs—the terror of Chicago—came to Pittsburgh today as two men walked boldly into Homeopathic Hospital, intimidated a ward-full of patients and carried an alleged mobster down the fire escape, leaving behind a 35-pound weight that had been attached to a broken leg.

The man whom they carried out—in rescue or kidnaping—is Peter Sebolsky, alias Morrison, 25, of Cicero. He was arrested after a gun battle April 15, in connection with robbery of Hazelwood stores. Bullets broke his leg.

ENTER BY WINDOW

It was early today that two men pushed up a window screen in a second floor ward in the hospital, removed the weights attached to Morrison's leg and carried him down the fire escape.

Six fellow-patients looked on, made no outcry.

The trio departed in a yellow roadster bearing Ohio license plates.

As the police spread their net today, the search spread to Eastern Ohio and focused on Cleveland.

The spectacular rescue was unheard of in hospital annals here. No guard had been posted over the wounded man. The weights and the cast on his leg had, it was deemed, made it impossible for him to escape.

CHEATS LAW

But Morrison was out today and had beaten—at least for the moment—the long arm of the law that had struck him down when he failed to halt on command of Patrolmen O'Connor and Ira Palmer last week.

O'Connor fired at him several times then and brought him down with a badly shattered bone in his right leg.

He told police he lived at 147 Glen Caladh street, Hazelwood, with his wife.

Patients in the ward said Morrison addressed one of his friends—if friends they were—by the name "Blackie."

There was no other identification.

MONACA TRIAL OFF UNTIL FALL

The Three Toms—Coyne, Dolan and Goslin—won another postponement of their trial on charges of operating the Monaca Club today, because of newspaper publicity they claimed might prejudice the jury.

Judges Samuel H. Gardner, Harry H. Rowand and W. Heber Dithrich agreed on a postponement until fall. Last of the items arousing objections was a story about Tom Coyne's being accused of judy-fixing.

The three men are charged with operating a gambling house and violating the liquor laws.

Spanish Fliers Hop From Cuba to Mexico

HAVANA, June 20.—(AP.)—Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, Spanish trans-Atlantic fliers, took off at 6:52 a. m., eastern standard time, today for Mexico City.

The aviators, who a week ago completed a nonstop flight from Spain to Cuba, expected to fly to Chicago from Mexico City.

Ann Harding's Mother Marries

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Gatley, mother of Ann Harding, screen actress, was married yesterday to Charles A. Frisbie, prominent in musical circles here as a cellist.

The bride wore a bright red costume. Only two friends were present as witnesses.

Barbara Hutton, '5-&-10' Heiress Married to Prince

PARIS, June 20.—(AP.)—Barbara Hutton, blonde American heiress whose fortune is estimated at $20,000,000, and Prince Alexis Mdivani, member of the Mdivani family of Czarist Georgia, were married today in a civil ceremony at the Mairie of the 16th Arrondissement.

A religious rite will be celebrated Thursday at the Russian Orthodox Church. They plan a wedding trip to Italy.

By a marriage contract, signed before the ceremony, the bride retains sole control over the property inherited from her grandfather, the late Frank W. Woolworth, chain store founder, excepting a dowry which she brought to the union.

FATHER WITNESS

Witnesses for the bride were her father, Franklyn L. Hutton, of New York, and an aunt, Mrs James P. Donahue, the former Jessie Woolworth.

For the prince they were his brother-in-law, the Spanish painter, Jose Maria Sert, and Akaki Tchenkeli, Georgian minister in Paris.

Carried out with the speed of perfunctory officialdom, the civil ceremony lasted only a couple of minutes.

READS MARRIAGE ACT

The 20-year-old bride, her blue eyes radiant, and the athletic prince, who is 29, stood with their witnesses while the Assistant Mayor, Daniel Marin, his red, white and blue sash of office about his waist, read the brief marriage act prescribed by the French republic.

The Prince's brothers, David and Serge, married into the Hollywood movie colony, David to Mae Murray and Serge to Pola Negri, but the latter mar-

VOTE QUIZ BOND CUT BLOCKED

An effort to cut the bond demanded of the 17 election officers indicted in the vote probe of the Thirty-second Congressional District last November was blocked today.

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar refused a request of Attorney S. C. Pugliese for a reduction of the $2,500 bond. None of those indicted had furnished bond today.

The judge said he would ntertain a motion for a rule on the District Attorney to show cause why the bond should not be reduced.

Appearance of Alderman John J. Verona, Hill district political leader, in the Federal Building today caused a stir among witnesses summoned to testify in the probe.

Verona hastened to explain that he was there not to testify but to see to bonds of some of his supporters. He admitted, however, that he had been subpenaed and likely would testify Thursday.

Bill Swift to Pitch For Pirates Today

BRAVES FIELD, BOSTON, June 20.—Both clubs eager for action as a result of their idleness of yesterday, the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves prepared to stage the third game of their series this afternoon.

Bill Swift, youthful Bucco righthander, was groomed for slab duty in the Pittsburgh lineup. Manager McKechnie, of the home club, was expected to counter with Southpaw Tom Zachary.

NO JOB, MAN INHERITS $375,000

'Punch on Nose' for Foes to Be His First Luxury

Fortune, as ever capricious and fantastic, today flaunted an inheritance of perhaps half a million dollars before a Millvale family, now "on the Welfare."

An estate of $375,000, with $10,000 royalty yearly on coal land, and "other securities," was due George C. Jones, of 730 Stanton avenue, Millvale, Jones has heard. A lawyer was on the way to collect it.

The estate, left by a grandfather in Wales, had been due him five years, Jones said.

JOBLESS THREE YEARS

Jones has been unemployed three years. He has been on the Welfare list nine months. He has a wife and two small children.

Sitting in soiled working shirt and overalls, Jones expressed three wishes—just like in the fairy stories—as to the first uses of his money:

"First, I'm going to settle everything I owe. I'm going to pay back the Welfare and give them a few thousand dollars extra.

"Then for two weeks I'm going round, and everybody I don't like I'm going to punch on the nose.

"Finally we might travel—Europe—hit the high spots."

'BLEW' $36,000

Jones was going to take care of this money—not throw it away in less than two years like the $36,000 he inherited when he was 22.

Jones has done some hard work in his time, he said. Running away from home when a boy, he saw the world as a sailor. He has worked all kinds of railroad jobs, been all over the country. He was last employed as maintenance man for the Dollar Savings and Trust Company.

The final upshot of his good fortune will be to build a home in Millvale, where his wife was born. He doesn't think he would be happy loafing, and plans to work on an air-gas patent, part of which he perfected before the depression.

3 STATES VOTE ON REPEAL

Associated Press.

Iowa and the New England states of New Hampshire and Connecticut voted today on repeal of the prohibition amendment.

Prohibitionists conceded defeat in Connecticut, a state which never gave its approval to the Eighteenth Amendment. New Hampshire and Iowa, however, were expected to show a more evenly divided sentiment.

Thus far 11 states have voted on repeal. All have favored it. The approval of 36 states is necessary before the prohibition amendment can be repealed.

States which have voted to date are: Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, New York, Nevada, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Wyoming, Rhode Island and Delaware.

Kaiser Escapes Death In Rail Crossing Crash

AMSTERDAM, June 20.—(AP.)—The former German Kaiser had a narrow escape from death while motoring recently in Holland, it was revealed today.

His automobile was crossing railroad tracks between Amsterdam and Haarlem when the bars were let down automatically at the moment when Wilhelm's motorcar was on the tracks.

One of the heavy bars hit the machine, damaging it considerably. The chauffeur was able to move the car from the tracks only a few seconds before a train hurtled past.

The former Kaiser, unhurt, continued the drive.

Lottie Pickford and Husband No. 4 Here 'Confess' Secret Marriage

MR. AND MRS. JOHN WILLIAM LOCKE IN WILKINSBURG TODAY . . . . HE'S HER 4TH HUSBAND

NEW HEAT WAVE MOVES ON CITY

A blazing sun sent the mercury sky-rocketing again today as the middlewestern heat wave bore down on this district.

More than a score of deaths were reported from the plains states as a result of the torridity, a majority from drowning. World's Fair visitors sweltered under 96 degrees.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted the temperature here would soar to 93 or 94 late today, slightly below marks recorded in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The record for this date is 95 in 1888. Yesterday's maximum of 89 was equaled at 3 p. m. today.

Low humidity made the heat here more bearable than during the extreme hot spell two weeks ago.

Little prospect of relief was held out by the weather bureau for the next 24 hours.

Movie Actress Wed To Pittsburgher in Show Business

Riding about Pittsburgh today in a big, expensive touring car were a young woman and a young man who have been playing a game of hide-and-seek with the country at large for several months.

They were Lottie Pickford, of the movies, and her fourth bridegroom, John William Locke, of Pittsburgh.

And they broke down and confessed, so to speak.

Yes, they finally admitted, after juggling the question for a month, they're married.

But they won't say where, for a very good reason. Lottie's divorce decree from Husband No. 3 doesn't become final, she said, until next February.

Until then Lottie doesn't want anybody snooping around a certain marriage license bureau scrutinizing the official record.

Locke, who appeared in the tabloid stage version of "Girl Crazy" and who is anxious to crash the movies in which his wife and her famed sister, Mary Pickford, were pioneers, is a son of Mrs. Minnie Locke, of Susquehanna street, Wilkinsburg. He left Pittsburgh several years ago to sell bonds in Chicago, later to enter show business. He has six brothers and sisters in the Pittsburgh district.

Mary Pickford, incidentally, has been told of the wedding and has given her blessing.

A crisp convesationalist of few words, Lottie indicated she wasn't interested in publicizing the wedding. She said:

"I like to mind my own business. I don't like to gossip . . . In Hollywood I ride my bicycle. John has a bicycle, too. But his is faster than mine."

This is the third time the newlyweds have more or less secretly visited the Pittsburgh Lockes since their wedding. They are stopping at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel in Wilkinsburg. In a day or two they intend to drive west and take up their residence in Hollywood.

Wild Hollywood? Silly idea, according to Miss Pickford:

"Why, at 10 o'clock you can throw bricks around the streets and not hit a soul."

ROOSEVELT WON'T HALT INFLATION

Parley Gets Threat Of American Isolation

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Currency stabilization will not take place in the near future, Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson said today.

The policy of this government will be to await the balancing of budgets by other principal countries, monetary reforms and other economic developments which must take place before it is decided at what level currency should be stabilized.

PRICE RISE

The avowed intention of the administration, it was emphasized, is to raise commodity price levels and this government does not intend to let anything stand in the way of that program, not even the World Economic Conference.

Any attempt by Great Britain and France to stabilize the dollar abroad by joint equalization fund manipulations would result in this nation's embarking on a policy of intense isolation as far as monetary matters are concerned, it was said.

These views of the President will be conveyed to the American delegation by Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, who sails tomorrow aboard the Manhattan for England. Moley will be the master mind behind the American delegation.

ROOSEVELT AIMS

President Roosevelt intends to shun permanent stabilization of the dollar until the rise in commodity prices has accomplished the general purpose of putting people back to work, liquidating banks, removing industries from the danger of collapse and generally starting the country back on the road to prosperity.

The President does not believe the time has arrived for any kind of stabilization, permanent or temporary.

The President feels the recent slump in commodity prices which followed reports of a stabilization agreement is ample evidence that any kind of stabilization at present would halt the rise.

New Delay Looms For Italian Fliers

ORBETELLO, Italy, June 20.—(INS.)—A new flare-up of bad weather over the Alps today promised to cause still further postponement in the take-off of Italy's seaplane armada on a flight by stages across the Atlantic to Chicago.

Italian aviation officials had hoped that the flight could get started tomorrow. It now appears, however, that unfavorable weather will delay it until later in the week.

5 Blind Picnickers Die in Truck Crash

FREUDENSTADT, Germany, June 20.—(INS.)—Four blind men and a blind girl were killed today when a motor truck carrying 41 inmates of a home for the blind and their nurses on an excursion crashed down a ravine and turned over.

STOCKS RISE IN BIG TRADING

NEW YORK, June 20.—(INS.)—After another uprush at the opening which saw leading issues up $1 to more than $3 a share on top of yesterday's spectacular rise, the stock market boom was checked today by enormous profit-taking combined with sluggishness in commodities.

A fresh fall in the dollar, however, which slumped to a discount of 24 per cent, or the equivalent of 76 cents, provided suppert and the majority of issues ruled above the previous close.

The ticker was again swamped by the tremendous dealings which in the first hour ran at nearly 10,000,000 shares a day and at one time was 15 minutes behind.

Wheat and cotton were buoyant in the early dealings but sold down to around yesterday's final prices later. Commodities generally displayed a firm undertone while speculative bonds were strong. Curb and bank stocks followed other markets up.

U. S. Parley Delegates In Open Split

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service.

LONDON, June 20.—As a prelude to a dramatic flareup within the ranks of his own delegation, Secretary of State Cordell Hull had a half-hour audience with King George today as the strife-torn World Economic Conference struggled ahead with its controversies.

The chief of the American delegation returned to the Geological Museum from Buckingham Palace to confront the ire of Senator James Couzens, of Michigan.

The Michigan Senator, only Republican member of the delegation, demanded unity and cohesion among the American representatives, heatedly declaring the time has come for the United States to follow a definite, positive policy—be it national or international.

While there was no official description of Couzens' unexpected "lecture" to the delegation, it was generally understood he "spoke his mind" about the trend of the conference and the American position with reference to it.

Behind closed doors, Couzens was reported to have called an

AUSTRIA LAUNCHES FIGHT TO CRUSH NAZI TERRORISTS

ENTIRE PARTY OUTLAWED BY NATION

Ruthless Self-Defense Edict Makes Hitler Men Legal Prey

By ALFRED TYRNAUER
International News Service.

VIENNA, June 20.—The Austrian government today flung down the gauntlet of battle to the finish with the Nazi party, which has terrorized the nation in its attempt to accomplish union with Hitlerized Germany.

The cabinet of Engelbert Dollfuss, diminutive fighting Chancellor who has waged ceaseless warfare against the Nazis, outlawed the party throughout the country.

Immediate proscription of Nazi storm troopers was decreed, and a ban was clapped down on the wearing of all Nazi emblems and pins. A similar decree outlawed all organizations affiliated with the Nazi party.

This action was taken after Maj. Fey, leader of the Austrian Heimwehr, presented evidence before the cabinet that the "Nazis are instigating the bomb outrages" throwing Austria into turmoil.

RUTHLESS PUNISHMENT

Ruthless punishment awaits Austrian Nazis unless they abandon their campaign against the government, Maj. Fey told International News Service. He declared:

"We have ordered the Heimwehren to shoot immediately to protect their own lives and those of their subordinates. We will use our right to self-defense ruthlessly in the event of a Nazi onslaught. We are resolved to quell the unprecedented violence throughout Austria."

To make the ban against Nazis effective, the government also forbade them to engage in political activity or to form any new political group.

Maj. Fey said police had evidence that Nazi storm troopers were behind recent numerous bombings in Vienna and that they also were responsible for a bombing in which 32 members of a Heimwehr police detachment were wounded, 16 of them seriously.

The bombs were hurled at the police from a cliff above a road leading into Krems, where the police barracks are located.

MURDER REPORT

With new disorders reported in various parts of the country, tension was heightened today by a mysterious radio broadcast stating Chancellor Dollfuss had been shot and killed. Police launched a thorough investigation to determine the source of the unfounded announcement.

Six more telephone lines were cut, while scores were injured in new clashes between Nazi and Heimwehren troops at Linz, Steyr, Tulln and Melk.

At Salzburg another outrage occurred as a group attempted to flood a large area by releasing the waters of a reservoir.

While Nazis redoubled their efforts to oust the government, the Catholic Church became the rallying point of the anti-Nazi bloc. Several priests were reported to have asked their parishioners to abandon Nazi affiliations, while in some cases priests refused to allow anyone wearing the Swastika emblem to enter their churches.

PERCHTOLSDORF, Austria, June 20.—(INS.)—A railway bridge near here was blown up today as the Austrian government carried on its fight against the Nazis.

Hitlerites Launch War On Nationalist Foes

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service.

BERLIN, June 20. — Believed paving the way for expulsion of Nationalists from the Hitler government, the Nazis today launched a sweeping drive against the Steelhelmet League, Nationalist organization of German war veterans.

Numerous Steelhelmet and Nationalist "fighting front posts" were raided and closed, while their leaders were arrested on charges of unfriendly utterances against Chancellor Hitler.

Lindy Club Fights For Beer Permit

Claiming that their beer permit application was "arbitrarily refused," the officers of the Lindy Club, Inc., appealed the action of the County Treasurer to Quarter Sessions Court yesterday. Two days after obtaining a Delaware charter, the Lindy Club applied for a license.

The hearing was scheduled for July 20 by Judge S. H. Gardner, who heard the petition, which was presented by Attorney William F. Beatty.

HOARDERS FACE PROSECUTION

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Prosecution of gold hoarders appeared imminent today after announcement by the Department of Justice that 183 persons had refused government requests to surrender $1,148,945 of gold and gold certificates.

Agents of the Department of Justice have been interviewing hundreds of persons reported to the Treasury to have withdrawn gold just before the banks were closed and all gold was called in. A great number were found to have turned in their hoards and many more did so when the drive began.

Attorney General Cummings some time ago predicted there would have to be some prosecution to settle the issue, but has withheld announcing any specific plan. Various persons, including Senator Borah, of Idaho, have challenged the government's authority to require surrender of the metal, claimnig this is infringement of constitutional private property rights.

Jews as Fete Singers Peril Hitler Romance

LONDON, June 20.—(INS.)—Engagement of two famous Jewish singers for the Wagner Festival at Bayreuth next month "is expected to shatter the hitherto untold love story of Chancellor Hitler," the London Daily Herald said today.

For months, the report continued, Hitler's circle has been awaiting announcement of his engagement to Frau Winifred Wagner, widow of Siegfried Wagner, son of the great composer.

U. S. Industrial 'Czar' Capital's Busiest Man

Gen. Johnson Wars On Depression in Shirt Sleeves

By FRASER EDWARDS
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—"Not a durn thing ready yet . . . Give you a wad of stuff a little later . . . Busy as all heck now . . . Come and see me . . . S'long."

Ripping out these staccato sentences in a booming parade-ground voice, the bulky man with the bulldog jaws and bushy brows, swept the group with a bronzed bare arm in a gesture that was at once a friendly farewell and an abrupt dismissal.

It was characteristic of the gruff cordiality of the "busiest man in Washington," Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, chief-of-staff of the American Army of Recovery, in terminating a short, snappy press conference yesterday.

Executing a military about-face, the General marched back to his high-piled desk to plunge into the mass of material from which he is rapidly evolving the machinery for the industrail control act.

His "uniform for the day"—as always—was shirt sleeves, which were rolled above the elbow. When he goes into action he does not want anything to hamper the stream of energy that flows from him like electricity from a dynamo.

His office—the G. H. Q. of the war against the depression—was in keeping with its occupant. Bare, monastic, severe, it contains only a desk, a chair and a telephone, in that palace of governmental structures, the $17,500,000 commerce department.

This heavyweight industrial czar has the temperament, the training and the experience to fit him for his job. He learned military discipline and precision at West point, the intricacies of industry as chief of army purchase and supply during the war as a member of the War Industrial Board.

50,000 Recalled In N. Y. This Year

ALBANY, N. Y., June 20.—(AP.)—Fifty thousand wage earners have been called back to work in New York State's reviving industries since the first of the year, it was estimated today on the basis of figures tabulated by the State Department of Labor.

Not only is the total payroll being increased by the army of new workers, the department said, but there has been a general increase in the average weekly pay check.

Auto Parts Industry Maps Recovery Code

DETROIT, June 20.—(AP.)—Representatives of manufacturers of automobile parts and accessories throughout the country met here today in closed session for the purpose, delegates said, of outlining a tentative code designed to outlaw "cut-throat" competition and to bring the group within the provisions of the industrial recovery act.

CAPPER SEES DOLLAR WHEAT

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, looks for dollar wheat by the end of 1933.

Cheerfulness about the future was the keynote of an interview given yesterday by the Republican Senator, a veteran in the fight for remedial farm legislation.

He said commodity prices should continue to rise, thus increasing employment and wages. Wheat that sold at 30 cents a bushel last year at this time now sells around 60 cents, and he said that by the end of the year it will yield the farmer $1.

He said that "this country goes up or down as agriculture goes, and increased purchasing power on the part of the farmer will be reflected almost immediately in all branches of business."

50,000 Employes Given Pay Boost

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 20.—(AP.)—The 50,000 employes of the General Electric Company in its plants in various parts of the country will receive a 5 per cent increase in wages, effective July 1.

Announcement of the increase was made at the offices of the company here today.

GETS 60 DAYS FOR HUGGING

Walter Miroski, 44, of 259 Spring way, was sentenced to 60 days in the workhouse by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Night Court for his alleged love making at Penn avenue and Seventeenth street late yesterday.

Police testified Miroski embraced several young women returning from work. He was also accused of stealing $10 from his wife, who is employed at nights. The money was spent for moonshine, it was testified.

Lineup Gangsters And Shoot Them, Judge Urges

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—Judge Erwin Cummins of the Washington County courts is an advocate of martial law and military punishment to curb gangster crime. He said:

Martial law should be declared in large cities ridden by crime. Convicted gangsters should be lined up against a wall and shot."

Judge Cummins was District Attorney in Canonsburg, Pa., during the flareup of "black hand" activities several years ago. Cummins started an investigation that landed two men in the electric chair at Rockview Prison.

BILLION BACKS U. S. DRIVE

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(INS.)—Preparing for the gigantic drive against depression the Treasury today had amassed a cash balance of $1,008,099,000.

This balance, remindful of war time, will be employed in the public works, agriculture and relief activities now getting under way.

This sum was accumulated in the sale of more than a billion dollars' worth of securities, and from usual income sources such as taxes and customs receipts.

So far in June over $104,231,000 in income taxes and $71,483,000 in miscellaneous internal revenue have been collected. Miscellaneous receipts which are expected to run more than $100,000,000 this month are nearly three times as great as last year.

BIG INDUSTRIES DRAFT WORK CODES

Textile Trade Will Receive First Hearing

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The major industrial groups of the country were urged today to take the initiative and submit a "basic code" as early as possible under the industrial recovery act.

Hugh S. Johnson, national administrator, invited the immediate submission of a model code by the 10 largest industries which will meet at once these three purposes of the President's program:

1—Maximum hours of labor. Minimum wage rates, and

3—Such means as each industry may find necessary to eliminate wasteful and unfair competition.

TEXTILE CALL ISSUED

Organization of industries under the national recovery act will be on a national basis rather than by state or local groups, it was stated at the office of Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the act, today.

And different arrangement would balk the purpose of the program. An example of national industry formulating a code of business procedure, it was said, is afforded by textile industry, two-thirds of which will be represented at hearings to begin next week on a code involving the whole industry, both northern and southern mills.

PUSH LABOR PLAN

The Labor Department began doing things necessary to have the new co-operative federal employment service in operation July 1. The corporation handling the $2,000,000,000 home mortgage fund proceeded with its organization, electing James G. Strong, former Republican Congressman from Kansas, as treasurer.

Meanwhile the two men administering the new farm law feel that the government's plans for a 20 per cent cut in wheat production and the destruction of 10,000,000 acres of growing cotton should cost the consumer very little, if anything.

U. S. TAX SURVEY AIMED TO PLUG LEAKS IN LAW

Senator King Favors Sales Levy, Lower Rate on Incomes

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—A special Senate review of all fields of taxation for the purpose of separating state and federal sources of revenue will be launched in the near future by a finance sub-committee, Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, its chairman, announced today.

King predicted a new federal tax law would be enacted at the next session of Congress plugging leaks in income taxes, eliminating the so-called miscellaneous taxes and possibly revising the whole field of federal taxation. He personally declared in favor of adopting a general sales tax as a special source of federal revenue.

NEW TAXATION

King said the inquiry would be devoted to finding new sources of taxation for the federal government and to eliminate duplicating taxes between the state and federal governments. A like inquiry will be conducted during the summer by the House Ways and Means Committee, King said:

"We will examine into duplication between state and federal taxing agencies with a view to determining whether it is possible to separate the fields of taxation between state and federal governments.

"Our investigation will be directed toward revision of the existing revenue laws, with particular emphasis on plugging holes such as were revealed in the Morgan inquiry. It is obvious that, no matter what economies are effected, there still will be need for tremendous federal revenues. We hope to determine where it best may be obtained."

FAVORS SALES TAX

King said Congress naturally would have to pass a new tax law when it meets again. He said his subcommittee would investigate corporate, inheritance and income taxes. He said there were indications some of the "inheritance taxes are unfair and exhaust the entire estate," so would have to be revised. He added:

"It is my hope to get rid of most of the nuisance taxes enacted in 1932 and repeated this year. That could be done either by a sales tax or by increased income taxes. I don't favor any increases on taxes on incomes from $4,000 to $6,000.

"There is pressure for a general sales tax and sentiment for it is growing stronger. I favor a sales tax because, in my judgment, it would lower income taxes."

U. S. TO PROBE NATIONAL BANK AFFILIATES

Reform Law Permits Quiz on Entire Setup Of Financial Houses

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—National bank affiliates will be put under the searchlight of investigation by the Comptroller of the Currency within the next few weeks, the Treasury revealed today.

The Treasury and Federal Reserve Board, backed by the broad authority of the new banking act, expect to make the most careful study of the banking setup that has ever taken place.

CALL SOON EXPECTED

It was expected the call for the condition of national banks and their affiliates would take place the last week in June or the first in July. Prior to passage of the Glass bill the government was not authorized to call for the condition of national bank affiliates.

Under the law there is a penalty of $100 a day against failure to submit the facts relative to condition of a bank affiliate.

Holding company affiliates as well as corporations handling securities, the capital stock of which is owned by a national bank, come within the scope of the law.

AFFILIATE INQUIRY

The Treasury may call for "such information as in the judgment of the Comptroller of the Currency shall be necessary to disclose fully the relations between such affiliate and each bank and to enable the Comptroller to inform himself as to the offset of such relations upon the affairs of such bank."

The Comptroller not only can make a minute examination of the affairs of affiliates, but when he finds doubt as to the propriety of the practices of the affiliate he may order them discontinued because of their effect on the affairs of the bank.

The forthcoming bank examination may be more strict than for many years, because of the necessity for a sound system under the deposit insurance feature.

ROUTLEY, BENZ GO ON TRIAL

James E. Routley, former assistant chief clerk in the County Commissioners' office, and C. C. Benz, former chief clerk in the County Purchasing Department, went on trial today before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, charged with conspiracy to defraud Allegheny County.

The commonwealth contends they used county-purchased gasoline in their automobiles. The gasoline, it is charged, was obtained from the Peoples Service Station, at the south end of the Liberty Tubes, operated by Edward M. Kenna, former county road superintendent.

Kenna, with John J. Gallagher, C. W. Doherty, former clerk in the Elections Bureau, and Patrick J. Swift, are to be tried later on similar charges.

William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk of the County Commissioners, and Howard B. Allen, former head of the County Motor Divisions, were adjudged guilty of similar charges recently by Judge Sylvester J. Snee, and have taken an appeal to Superior Court.

HANOVER, N. H., June 20. — (AP.)—Sir George Halsey Perley, K. C. M. President Ernest Martin Hopkins conferred the degree of doctor of laws on Sir George Perley and the doctor of music degree on Damrosch.

Roosevelt Sails Away As Storm Clears

AT SEA OFF CHATHAM, Mass., June 20.—(AP.)—The luck of the weather finally broke for President Roosevelt today and an easterly breeze shot his schooner along over smooth seas around the bend of Cape Cod towards Provincetown on the tip.

Pulling out from Nantucket at 6 o'clock (Pittsburgh time) "Skipper" Roosevelt smiled broadly as the moderate wind filled his sails and the sun came out to warm the air.

Yesterday's threatened nor'easter had vanished and he was quickly along on his rolling course far out to sea.

In contrast to yesterday's fight with the storm, Mr. Roosevelt today was using al sail whereas then he scooted along only under the foresail.

Provincetown by tonight was almost necessary if Mr. Roosevelt is going to reach his destination of Campo-Bello Island off the coast of Maine by June 28. Today's run is 85 miles and that is a long stretch for a sailing vessel but the southwest wind, if it keeps up, should help.

Jail Mitchell to Aid Confidence, U. S. Plea

NEW YORK, June 20.—(INS.)—United States Attorney George Z. Medalie called on the jury today at the income tax evasion trial of Charles E. Mitchell to convict the former head of the National City Bank in order to uphold public confidence in "our political and economic organization." He said:

"If a public example shows there is a defiance of law, of morals, and if such a defiance remains unpunishable, confidence in our political and economic organization would collapse.

"Not every man who holds high office in the business or the banking world is under suspicion or prosecution. But when one of them betrays the confidence reposed in him, the last thing he has to say either morally or in good sportsmanship is that he has been singled out or the object of persecution."

The government charges two sales of stock by Mitchell, including one to his wife, were both fictitious. A loss of millions was claimed by Mitchell. Furthermore, Mitchell omitted $666,666 he received from the "management fund" of the National City Company. The government charges this amount was "income." The defense claims it was "an advance."

WIDOW OF HEINZ NEPHEW WEDS NEW YORK DETECTIVE

SOCIETY JEWEL GUARDIAN, 52, BRIDEGROOM

Former Birmingham Beauty, Officer Sail On Honeymoon

Mrs. Kathryn Heinz, widow of a nephew of the late H. J. Heinz, today was the bride of a New York police officer, whom she met at a society event where he was guarding the jewels of wealthy guests.

The bride, 38, is one of the five Conniff sisters of Birmingham, England, all noted for their beauty. Her husband is Detective Thomas McGuire, 52.

Mrs. McGuire's first husband was Augustus Victor Henry Heinz, nephew of the founder of the famous Pittsburgh "57 Varieties" fortune. He died in 1914, and since then his widow has lived in New York and Lake Geneva, Wis.

ROMANCE BEGINS

McGuire was assigned to protect valuables at a fashionable gathering in New York four years ago. Mrs. Heinz met him there, and the romance that began culminated in their marriage yesterday in Jersey City, N. J.

Mrs. McGuire said:

"Things began getting serious about a year ago and we were engaged for six months. Then we just decided to slip off without saying anything to anyone except a few relatives and close friends and get married. And that's what we did."

McGuire has been in the New York Police Department 28 years. In recent years he has been detailed frequently as jewelry guard at social functions, and as such became acquainted with many society people.

HONEYMOON CRUISE

The couple planned to leave today on a honeymoon cruise to Florida.

Mrs. McGuire was attended at the wedding by a sister, Mrs. Walden E. Muns. The detective's son, Robert, was best man. Other members of the wedding party were Dr. Muns, a prominent physician, and the bridegroom's daughter, Mrs. Ruth Samious.

The first Mrs. McGuire died several years ago. Detective McGuire served in the Spanish-American and World wars and is a captain in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

ROSE STOKES, 'RED' LEADER, DIES ABROAD

Heart Attack Ends Stormy Career; Wed Millionaire

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Germany, June 20.—(AP.)—Rose Pastor Stokes, American leader of radical causes, died today at the Municipal Hospital. A heart ailment was given as the immediate cause of death. She recently was operated on for cancer.

The body will be cremated and the ashes sent to New York.

The cancer operation was performed by Prof. Vito Schmieden. Mrs. Stokes entered the hospital on April 15. She was 54.

SENTENCED TO JAIL

Rose Pastor Stokes was throughout her life a champion of radical causes.

She was often in conflict with the law and once she was sentenced to serve 10 years in Leavenworth Penitentiary for obstructing the draft. The sentence was commuted by President Wilson.

She was born in Augustova, Suwalk, Russia, in 1897, and spent her early childhood in London. At the age of 10 she was rolling tobacco in a New York cigar factory.

She soon became known as the "Rose of the Ghetto." James Graham Phelps Stokes, millionaire Socialist, met her shortly after he had turned from banking to social betterment work. She was then writing verse and reporting for a Jewish newspaper.

WEDS MILLIONAIRE

Though a Jewess she was married to him in 1905 in the rites of the Episcopal Church. They were divorced in 1925. Throughout the 20 years they were together he stoutly defended her whenever she collided with the law.

One of their first activities together was in the Intercollegiate Socialist Study Society. They lectured at many universities, and Mrs. Stokes took active part in strike agitations and birth control meetings. In 1913 she was barred from a Boston church because of her utterances.

CONVICTED OF ESPIONAGE

She was convicted of espionage in 1918 because she said in a letter to the Kansas City Star "No government which is for the profiteers can also be for the people. I am for the people, while the government is for the profiteers."

She was sentenced to 10 years, but higher courts set the sentence aside. She was indicted in Chicago in 1920 with 85 Communists on charges of violating the Illinois anti-sedition law.

Four years after her divorce she married Isaac Romaine, a labor leader and father of Jerry Romaine, considered a prodigy. She was Romaine's wife at the time of her death.

LAMSON MUST FIGHT NOOSE BEFORE JURY

Stanford Man Grim As Gallows Looms In Bathtub Death

(Editor's Note—Elenore Meherin, noted writer, today describes David Lamson's reaction after the university man had been held to answer on a charge of killing his pretty wife. He has been returned to jail to await trial, which probably will be held some time in August.)

By ELENORE MEHERIN
Author of "Chickie" and other popular novels.

SAN JOSE, Cal., June 20. — Eyes that look on gallows and do not flinch—

Eyes that burn the witness box with grim, proud challenge while into his face his accusers hurl the charge:

"Murderer."

These are the eyes of David Lamson, drawing like living magnets on the courtroom yesterday when he was held to answer on a charge of murdering his young wife in the bathtub of their Stanford campus home.

Imperious, defiant, they seemed to say as Howard Buffington, ace prosecution witness took the stand:

"Will he tell the truth? Will he say the simple words as I told them? What black, sinister thing is about to be done to me?"

A battle of eyes those who saw will never forget. All the breathless, anxious emotion of these three days was concentrated in one great impulse that moved toward Buffington as the rough and ready, soft-voiced Deputy Sheriff began the testimony that was expected to weave the rope around David Lamson's neck.

SISTERS IN COURT

Dr. Margaret Lamson and Mrs. Willis Thoit, sisters of the defendant turned a flaming, heart-holding attention on the witness box. The tale began. The words of the young defendant were repeated. You could have heard a gnat whisper.

"We were sitting on the couch in the nursery or the back bedroom. I said to him: 'How did blood get on your bathrobe?' He answered: 'There can't be blood on my bathrobe. Well, if there is, I can't account for it. Do you think, like the rest of the sheriffs that I murdered my wife?' I answered, "I'll be fair with you. I naturally think you did. What did you strike her with?' He said: 'I never struck her. I didn't kill her. I do not see how anyone could, because she was so dear and everyone loved her. I don't blame you for asking these questions. It does look black for me. But I have not a reason in the world to kill my wife. I loved her.'"

The audience sat back stupefied with shock. Is the sheriff speaking for the prosecution? It sounds so convincing and complete a defense!

BOMB ONLY FIRECRACKER

The bomb that was expected to blow to bits Lamson's claim of innocence was Buffington's testimony. It proved the veriest firecracker. When the Sheriff stepped down from the stand the Freudian motive of frustrated love had all but vanished—no premeditation was established and the evidence did not point inevitably to Lawson.

No wonder the defendant looked out on the sunny world with the first faint glimmer of a smile his young suffering face has shown.

Electric were the moments of that last day. One that set every pulse leaping came as Defense Attorney Edwin M. Rea called out:

"Stand up, Dave!"

He wanted the prosecution to identify scratches alleged to have been seen on the defendant's face the day of the crime.

Lamson stood. Bracing his shoulders, he flung back his head and sent his haunted eyes straight into the eyes of the avid, peering throng. He took it standing; took it bravely, grimly.

Buffington said:

"Yes, that's the mark I saw the day of the murder."

It's a fine red line that looks like an old scar.

CELL UNDER WATER TANK

Lamson has been called stony—a sphinx. Perhaps he is, if a sphinx is muted with grief. If David Lamson is guilty, he is an iron man, who does not flinch even when held for a trial that may take away his life. If he is innocent he is the bravest and the most stricken human thing anyone could ever see. His face tells the most consummate woe.

If Leonard wished to paint a man's eyes that would haunt the world with the mystery of pain as Mona Lisa's haunt it with the mystery of lure, he would paint David Lamson as he went back to his cell under the water tank in the ancient jail here to spend the summer and to wait until it shall be judged if he has a right to live.

Boy and Girl Strikers Picket Rankin Plant

'Slave' Pay Charged By Candy Cooks And Wrappers

Cardboard posters demanding higher wages for candy sucker makers and the death of sweatshops, were tacked on the Sterling Specialty Company, Rankin, today as the young employes of the organization staged a strike.

Twenty-five boys and girls blocked the candy plant's entrance, vowing to "scalp" all strike breakers. An 18-year-old Italian girl tried to enter the building early this morning, but they soon sent her on her way somewhat black and blue.

Dominic Cafaro, 18, of 7414 Duquesne street, Swissvale, who has been picked as their leader said:

"They don't treat us right. They don't let you work regular hours and even make you clean up the place on Sunday. We often work extra hours and they don't pay us anything extra."

On strike are three boys and 22 girls. The boys claim that they get only $1.25 a day for cooking candy which is made into penny suckers. They claim that they have to work 12 and more hours a day.

The girls say that they get one cent for every 100 suckers they wrap. Gertrude Leksick, 19, of 431 Kenmawr avenue, Rankin, who says she only makes $3.00 a week, explained:

"We have to slave for the few dollars that we make. It isn't right. And we're going to keep striking until we make more money."

Charles Plesset, of 2514 Beechwood boulevard, who is one of the managers at the candy plant, said he was unconcerned about the strike. He continued:

"I think I'll go home and sleep until it's all over."

He said that nobody had been hired in the strikers' places and that he was going to close up the candy plant until "the boys and girls cooled off."

2,000 STRIKE FOR PAY RAISE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 20.—Two thousand men walked out on strike against policies of three companies in Fayette County today.

All asked for wage increases.

Largest of the walk-outs was that at the Clyde mines, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, of W. J. Rainey, Inc., near Brownsville. About 1,300 men there asked for pay increases similar to those granted about one-sixth of the miners for the H. C. Frick Coke Company yesterday.

Meanwhile, strike leaders predicted the Frick workers would also walk out today. They had been granted an employes representation plan which the Rainey miners want to adopt for themselves.

Meanwhile, a 20 per cent increase in pay is sought by strikers at the Republic Steel Corporation's plant and the Pleasant Valley Coal and Coke Company's Oliver works. They also ask a cut in rent and decreased doctor's payments.

At Republic, 400 men struck; at Pleasant Valley, 300.

DEATH TAKES 'RED CLARA'

MOSCOW, June 20.—(INS.)—Clara Zetkin, "Mother of German Communism," died peacefully in her sleep last night in the Sanitarium at Archangel Skoye, near Moscow, where she had lived for the past year, it was learned today. She was 76.

The end was in sharp contrast with her stormy life of campaigning for the Communist ideal through the years in which she won the sobriquet of "Red Clara."

'Big Shots' of Rum Racket Turn To Kidnaping, Senate Probers Find

BOHN AND HAMM ON KIDNAP HUNT

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 20.—(AP.)—A new development in the hunt for the kidnapers of William Hamm, Jr., was seen today in an unexplained automobile trip to an auannounced destination by Hamm, Haskell Bohn, abducted a year ago, and his father, Gebhard Bohn.

Hesitating in his work on the Hamm case, climaxed early Monday by the latter's release after payment of an undetermined amount of ransom, M. F. Kinkead, Ramsey County attorney, branded as the work of a crank a postcard received by a St. Paul newspaper implying that another prominent citizen would be seized. The postcard, postmarked Minneapolis, carried no signature except the letter "R."

Police Put on Trail Of Kidnaped Doll

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 20.—(INS.)—A kidnaping was engaging the attention of local police today.

Accompanied by her mother, little Dorothy Masker reported at the local police station that some one spirited away her doll carriage and a "blue-eyed, golden-hairde" doll from in front of a local store.

Bootlegging Dead, Underworld Tries New 'Business'

WASHINGTON, June 20. — (INS.) — Accumulating evidence that "big shots" of the underworld have turned to kidnaping as a super-racket today engaged the attention of the special Senate Committee named to investigate racketeering in interstate commerce.

This evidence consisted of facts concerning sensational kidnaping cases of recent months and information from underworld sources, supplementary information already is seeping to the committee. Senator Murphy (Dem.), of Iowa, declared:

"I have received reports that the beer racket is 'dead,' now that 3.2 per cent beer is legitimate. The 'alkey' racket no longer offers big money. Kidnaping has become the biggest racket in America. No person of means or prominence is safe."

To show the alarming growth of this form of racketeering, Murphy listing these kidnapings:

Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., slain despite the payment of a huge ransom, after being kidnaped from his New Jersey home.

"Peggy" McMath, of Barnstable, Mass., ransomed for $70,000.

Charles Boettcher, of Denver, Col., ransomed for $60,000.

Haskell Bohn, of St. Paul, Minn., ransomed for $12,000.

Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of the city manager of Kansas City, Mo., ransomed for $33,000.

William Hamm, Jr., rich St. Paul brewer, ransomed for "less than $100,000."

KIDNAP TRIAL CALLS 'PEGGY'

BARNSTABLE, Mass., June 20. —(AP.)—Margaret (Peggy) McMath who was kidnaped from Harwich Center grammar school on May 2, was slated today to be the last witness for the prosecution in the trial of Kenneth and Cyril Buck, who are charged with the crime.

The child was returned three days later after ransom demands had been met. The money later was recovered in the home of Kenneth Buck.

Indications were Peggy may testify late in the afternoon. She was not enthusiastic about her impending appearance. She once protested:

"I've told them all about it several times. Can't they remember it?"

Neil C. McMath, Peggy's father, preceded her to the stand and related a vivid description of how he paid over $60,000 to the kidnapers of his 10-year-old daughter in a dimly-lit boat anchored in Wychmere Harbor, on the night of May 4.

ANTI-RACKET LAW PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(INS.)—An anti-racketeering bill was submitted to Attorney General Cummings today by Representative Woodruff (Rep.), of Michigan, with a request that the administration approve the legislation at the next session of Congress.

The bill would permit federal courts to prosecute racketeers who crossed state lines or import gunmen into states and generally enlarge the scope of federal prosecution. Woodruff said:

"The tribute paid racketeers is estimated at from $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 a year.

"This will be doubled when the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed. Already racketeers believing the Eighteenth Amendment will be repealed within a year are turning to other lines of possible crime."

MATTERN HUNT BALKED BY FOG

NOME, Alaska, June 20.—(AP.)—Still weather-bound at their isolated Pribilof Island base, two Navy airmen today awaited clearing skies before starting a search for Jimmy Mattern, round-the-world flier, missing since he took off Wednesday from Khabarovsk, Siberia, en route here.

Low hanging clouds and fogs in this vicinity and the Aleutian Islands has kept the airmen, Ensign William A. Moffett, Jr., son of the late Rear Admiral Moffett, and Lieut. John Vest, close to their base, the old troop ship Argonne, for the past two days.

OIL BLAST KILLS BODENHAMER

SHREVEPORT, La., June 20.—(INS.)—O. L. Bodenhamer, former national commander of the American Legion, was dead today from burns suffered in a gas explosion on his oil lease near Henderson, Tex.

Death came in a hospital here last night despite emergency treatment in the "heat bath" and intravenous injections.

Bodenhamer and R. C. Cook were preparing to reopen the wells after a three-day shutdown when the explosion was set off by a match struck by the former legion commander as he attempted to light a cigaret.

The clothing of Bodenhamer was burned from his body. Cook, a lease tender, was badly burned and required hospital treatment.

Bodenhamer was prominent in the business and civic life of El Dorado, Ark. He was defeated last year by Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway in the Democratic primary race for United States Senator.

KANE, Pa., June 20.—(INS.)—Chester M. Victory, 18-year-old high school student, shuffled about behind cell bars at the Smethport Jail today while police probed a dime-thriller kidnaping plot, whose principals included two women golfers—the intended victims—an imaginary wounded deer and an all-too-real loaded pistol.

Charges of pointing firearms and aggravated assault and battery piled up against young Victory as state police and County Detective J. J. Allison extracted the story of his melodramatic escapade.

Victory, a former caddy at the Kane Country Club, confessed he lured Mrs. L. C. Pacquet, wife of an Army lieutenant stationed at the Highland C. C. C. Camp, and Mrs. C. H. Tomes, her companion, into a woods near the golf course by a story of a "wounded deer" he was attempting to revive.

Arriving in the woods, Victory produced a loaded .32 caliber pistol and bound the hands of both victims behind their backs.

For a half mile, he pushed and pulled the stumbling women through the underbrush.

Then, something snapped. His nerve failed and he released the women. Both were unharmed.

Boy Ward Found Living In Shack With Deaf Mute

A boy, a 6-year-old Juvenile Court ward, today was found living in a lean-to shack with an old woman 73 years old and a 50-year-old deafmute coal miner, her son. The woman said she was an aunt of the child's deceased mother.

The lean-to shack is partitioned off into four ill kept rooms, one of which has the earth for a floor. Tar paper over the roof of the sleeping room offers some protection from the rain, but the other rooms have gaping boards for a covering.

In the main living room-kitchen there is a battered table, four rickety chairs with cardboard seats, a mussed kitchen cabinet and a tiny ice-box. Water for household purposes must be carried more than half a mile.

The boy, in overalls and bare feet, suffered from some impediment in speech. Whether this impediment was caused by constant association with the deaf mute and his aged mother, was not evident.

U. S. DELEGATES TO PARLEY IN ROW

end to such tactics as those of Saturday, when American experts proposed a 10 per cent horizontal tariff slash and Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, promptly disowned it as an official proposal.

This, he was reported to have charged, made the American delegation the object of ridicule in conference quarters. Unless the American delegation can make up its mind on a definite policy, he said, it might just as well pack up and go home.

Couzens, it was understood, was aroused by the consistent "panning" to which the American delegation has been subjected since its arrival in London, not only in editorials but in the news columns of the British press.

Beginning with Secretary Hull's toast to the "Irish Republic" on his arrival at Queenstown right through until this morning the American delegation and its policies have been held up to ridicule at every stage, which has been helped along by such incidents as the tariff proposal and the subsequent muddle.

An example of the daily thrusts was the Daily Herald's comment today on the silver resolution introduced by Senator Pittman. The newspaper said:

"Whether the Senator represents the President's mind any better than Secretary Hull or Gov. Harrison, of the Federal Reserve Bank, remains to be seen."

The same article pictured President Roosevelt as "having a bang-up good time" cruising along the American coast while the conference flounders in a sea of indecision—allegedly, according to the editorial, caused by America's unwillingness to stabilize the dollar.

Silver Restoration Sidetracked at Parley

LONDON, June 20.—(INS.)—Overcoming French and British objections, a monetary sub-committee of the World Economic Conference today rushed through the stabilization and gold cover reduction portions of Senator Key Pittman's silver restoration resolution.

The portion dealing with restoration of silver itself, however, was sidetracked into a sub-committee of the sub-committee, of which Senator Pittman was named chairman.

Pittman accepted the situation resignedly. When the resolution emerged from the committee meeting, it had been amended by Viscount Hailsham, of Britain, allowing countries now off the gold standard to stabilize their currencies when and at any rate they wish.

2 Children Hurt By Dynamite Caps

Two children, burned by exploding dynamite caps, were in a serious condition today. Police said Emil Colletta, 5, of 513 Fifth street, and Donald Robbins, 7, of 420 June way, both of Braddock, played with the caps found on a railroad track near their home late yesterday.

PHYSICIANS TO SEE BULLETS BIG AND LITTLE

County Ballistician To Appear Before Medical Society

Bullets so small that a hole cannot be found after they have goen through a person and bullets so big that a person cannot be found after being struck by them will xe exhibited before the Allegheny County Medical Society as part of the physicians' hobbies display in Hotel Schenley tonight.

The bullets are the hobby of Dr. W. J. McGregor, county coroner, but will be explained by J. L. Davidson, ballistician in the Coroner's office.

Another hobby is the crib of "Skippy," otherwise known as Ira Ludwig Bryant, who has been "aged in the wood" most of his two years. He was brought up in a crib made of a beer barrel contrived by his parent, Dr. I. M. Bryant, Forbes avenue and Boquet street, and Dr. Mortimer Cohen, a bachelor of the University of Pittsburgh medical school. They lend it to associates of the profession.

Among the scores of exhibits, Dr. John K. Musgrave will offer a miniature replica of his Mt. Lebanon home. Dr. Musgrave built and furnished the house in his spare time; in fact, he utilized 1,000 hours in its construction.

IRA LUDWIG SKIPPY) BRYANT . . . . THAT CONVERTED BEER BARREL'S BEEN HIS CRIB

"Skippy" in his crib, the handiwork of his father, Dr. I. M. Bryant, and a friend who'll exhibit it tonight in the exhibition of doctors' hobbies at the meeting of the Allegheny County Medical Society at the Hotel Schenley. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BRITISH CLAIM DEBT HOLIDAY

LONDON, June 20.—(INS.)—Suspension of inter-Allied debts and reparations under the Lausanne treaty remains in force despite Britain's part payment on her foreign debt to the United States.

This was announced in the House of Commons today by Leslie Hore-Belisha, financial secretary of the Treasury, in answer to a question from George Lambert, Liberal.

Britain, Hore-Belisha said, is reserving her rights under existing agreements pending a final settlement.

The payment of $10,000,000 in silver to the United States on June 15, he said, will be made from ordinary public funds without a supplementary budget estimate.

Lambert demanded that Commons be given an opportunity to discuss the debts. He asked:

"Why should the United States Congress have the final word?"

G. A. R. NAMES COMMANDER

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP.)—The vacant place in its command was filled yesterday by the Grand Army of the Republic.

Shortly after a handful of the Civil War veterans attended funeral services for Capt. William P. Wright, national commander, they installed Col. Russell C. Martin, 84, of Los Angeles, as his successor.

Military honors were accorded the dead leader, who died while attending an encampment in Pittsburgh last week.

Bernard Baruch Named 'Man Behind Throne'

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(INS.)—Bernard M. Baruch, noted New York financier and mystery man of American politics, today became the "figure behind the throne" in Washington.

He assumed the duties of adviser to President Roosevelt on domestic as well as foreign affairs during the absence in London of Assistant Secretary of State Moley.

Although not on the government payroll and acting entirely in an informal capacity, Baruch will occupy Moley's offices at the State Department.

In announcing that Baruch would be at the State Department during his absence, Moley let it be known the New York financier may continue as adviser to the President even after Moley's return from London.

Moley said that besides acting as adviser to the President, Baruch also would advise Acting Secretary of State Phillips on matters relating to the State Department and the nation's foreign affairs.

Baruch has accepted this post at the special request of the President, Moley added.

Long known as an important figure behind the scenes in national affairs, Baruch has been called in by each succeeding President since Woodrow Wilson on matters that affected the welfare of the nation.

Although a leading figure in Democratic politics, he has assumed a back seat and avoided publicity, preferring to quietly aid in directing the destiny of the nation rather than bask in the limelight.

PARLEY SPURS RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

LONDON, June 20.—American recognition of Russia, while far removed from the world economic conference agenda, may be materially advanced here before the American delegates start for home, International News Service learned today.

The mere presence of the American Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, and the Soviet Foreign Commissar, Maxim Litvinoff, under the same roof, is enough to stimulate active interest in the possibility of renewed relations.

Thus far, there has been no direct contact between the two men, but the small amenities have been observed, which is a marked contrast to the deliberate snubbing Former Secretary of State Stimson gave Litvinoff during the Geneva disarmament conference in 1930.

At that time Stimson turned his back on Litvinoff and declined to speak to him.

International News Service is now in a position to state that most of the American delegates here favor recognition of Russia provided a 'suitable basis" can be found.

This is in line with President Roosevelt's understood policy for eventual recognition.

Also, it is learned that among the instructions President Roosevelt gave the delegation before it left Washington was that the Russians must be treated as cordially at the World Economic Conference as any other delegates.

Methods of approach to the problem have been discussed in the delegation, the majority feeling Litvinoff should make the first move. This, it is understood, he is willing to do. In fact, informal feelers already have been put out.

Pontiff Receives New U. S. Bishop

VATICAN CITY, June 20. —(AP.)—Pope Pius today gave an audience to Monsignor James Anthony Walsh, founder and superior general of the Mary Knoll Missionaries, Mary Knoll, N. Y., who is a newly appointed bishop.

I SEE BY TODAY'S WANT ADS—

That a gentleman in Ohio wants a cash market to take three cases of fresh eggs every week.

That 5 rooms can be rented for $20, 3 rooms for $23, or 2 rooms for $12 in West View, gas, light and heat included in rentals.

That a farm one hour from Pittsburgh, suitable for camp site is offered at $20 per acre.

That anyone owning a girls bicycle 28-inch, can find a purchaser in Penhurst Exchange.

That a seamless porcelain lined throughout refrigerator, 100 lb. capacity can be bought for $10.

It's not unusual, because of quick results, for Sun-Telegraph want ads to be cancelled before last insertion. Nowadays it's Sun-Telegraph for want ad results.

3 PLANE DEATHS HELD ACCIDENT

BERNARDINO, Cal., June 20.—(INS.)—"Accident" was the coroner's jury verdict today of the airplane crash that claimed the lives of three persons prominent in the Hollywood motion picture colony.

Harry Sweet, 32, studio director and actor; Vera Williams, 23, a striking brunette actress known on the screen as Claudette Ford, and Hal Davitt, 35, screen and magazine writer, met death when Sweet's plane crashed 50 feet into Big Bear Lake.

Eye-witnesses said that the plane engine failed. The bodies were recovered.

Miss Williams was a native of Toledo, O., where her mother, Mrs. George Hallar, resides.

2 'WIDOWS' LEFT BY RAIL VICTIM

YORK, Pa., June 20.—(INS.)—Carl Joseph Kuhles, one of three men who died in a rail accident a week ago, had two families, both in Illinois, according to letters in possession of Dr. L. U. Zech, York County Coroner today.

Communications inquiring into the manner of Kuhles' death were received from a woman who signed her name as Emma Sleater, of Peoria, Ill., and from another who bears Kuhles' name and address at Streator, Ill. Each is the mother of two children and Kuhles was their father, according to the letters.

Kuhles was one of three men whose bodies were found atop a freight car here. It was believed they were riding west on a train when they were struck down by a low bridge.

GIMBELS—A MILLION DOLLARS IN JUNE

NERVE CONTROL RECORDED BY 'METER'

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP.)—As a thermometer registers temperature changes, so can the proper functioning of one's own elaborate telegraphic system—the nerves—be checked.

This was explained today at the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Prof. A. V. Hill, of the University of London. He found that:

Along the nerves are weak points—points where ability to transmit impulses to the brain fail. Messages to the nervous system's switchboard, the brain, are thus delayed.

NERVE LIMITATION

The nerves can accommodate only a limited amount of impulses, just as telegraph wires can transmit a maximum of messages. Overload them, and "wire trouble" begins.

These discoveries suggested to Prof. Hill that persons are slower in their reactions after steady activity; quicker when fresh, and that response to stimuli is subject to a law of diminishing returns.

To survey the workings of nerves, Prof. Hill used a thermometer that registered a temperature change as small as two millionths of a degree.

With this supersensitive instrument, he found that nerves, like muscles, produce heat when stimulated to work. Then, he carried on a series of experiments that were literally "shocking" to the nerves.

'SHUT DOWNS' RESULT

Electrical stimuli were applied to living nerves. If a strong stimulus was given and at frequent intervals, the nerve continued to produce heat, but only up to a certain point.

Too much "juice" turned on resulted in complete shutdown of the nerve's activity. Under a moderate electrical stimulus, it went on producing heat. When strong shocks were administered again, the heat radiations stopped.

The nerve, said Prof. Hill, became "inhibited" and inoperative when given too much work to do.

Prof. Herbert S. Gasser, of the Cornell University medical college, commenting on the results of Prof. Hill's experiments, said they indicated that nerve can carry only a limited load of impulses and that it has points of inferior conduction.

Woman Held as First Beer Law Violator Here

Mrs. Mary Ligon, Negro, caretaker of a Glen Osborne estate, had the doubtful honor last night of being the first person in Allegheny County to be held for court for violation of the new beer laws.

She was arrested along with a score of others in a police raid Saturday night on a dance held in an old family residence at Glen Osborne lane and the Ohio River boulevard. She was also held on a charge of keeping a disorderly house and violation of the Snyder act by Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley. The other persons were discharged.

RAIL CUT DELAY ASKED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Railroad management today received a suggestion from administration sources that proposed wage reductions be postponed.

Joseph B. Eastman, co-ordinator of transportation, conferred in an unofficial capacity this morning with the management committee of the carriers which is handling a proposal for a permanent reduction of 22½ per cent in railroad wages.

At the close of the conference Eastman indicated that he had suggested to the railroad managers that the issue be postponed. He said:

"The wage situation was discussed from the management viewpoint. One of the questions considered was whether there should be a postponement of the issue. At this time no information is possible as to what will occur."

ALFONSO BALKS AT SON'S PLEA

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 20.—(AP.)—The former Prince of the Asturias is seeking an eleventh-hour reconciliation with his father, former King Alfonso, of Spain, who remains opposed to his eldest son's marriage tomorrow to Edelmira Sampedro, a Cuban commoner.

Meanwhile, saddened by the latest royal family message reiterating its opposition, the former prince secluded himself today, possibly because of threats made against his life in a letter received here. A heavy guard was thrown about his hotel.

The civil wedding ceremony is to take place tomorrow morning, with the religious service in the afternoon. The former prince has renounced his rights to the Spanish throne and has taken the name Count of Cavadonga.

Even the counterfeiting racket is affected by the depression.

DEATH SUSPECT FOUND SHOT

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—(AP.)—Sought for questioning in connection with the slaying of Miss Gabrielle Andrieux, French seamstress, Clifford Sherwood was found in a street in nearby Burbank today with a bullet wound in his head. Police said the wound was self-inflicted.

An emergency operation in an effort to save his life was performed at a hospital. Hospital attaches said he was dying.

Miss Andrieux, 28, was killed yesterday in a Hollywood bungalow. The regular occupant of the bungalow, Mrs. Lucie Belville, dressmaker, said that Sherwood, a chess expert, had threatened to kill the woman if she did not marry him.

MURDER PLOT TRAPS WIFE

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP.)—Marion Opas, 37, proprietor of a motor sales company, was alive and well today, but police had his wife and four companions in jail and held their confessions they said to an alleged plot to kill him for his $30,000 insurance.

The alleged plot centered around Mrs. Bessie Opas, 36, mother of two children. After her arrest yesterday following confession of the youths she told police she planned "to get rid of her husband" and had agreed to pay the boys $5,000 for the job.

The arrests followed when Opas became suspicious of the actions of the alleged leader of the gang and turned him over to authorities.

Reach for a Lucky

—for always Luckies Please!

A man's cigarette?

Well—here's why I enjoy Luckies

Somehow, I have always felt that it takes a really fine cigarette to please a man. And since many of the men whose judgment I value smoke Luckies...I reach for a Lucky, too. True, I enjoy Luckies' fine tobacco quality and their delicious mildness. But my real reason is perhaps a trifle feminine. Men may not appreciate this as much as a sensitive woman—but I'm particularly grateful to "Toasting" for that comforting assurance of purity. I've talked to many women about this—remember, a cigarette becomes an intimate thing with us, we place it between our lips. And so, perhaps, because I am a woman this is my woman's reason for always saying "Luckies Please!"

HEALTH SURVEY OF CHILDREN TO BE MADE

More than 1,000,000 children on the relief rolls of Pennsylvania and 225,000 more "on the border line" will be examined for malnutrition. The work will be done by the State Medical Socety.

Dr. Samuel McClintock Hamill, of Philadelphia, visited Pittsburgh yesterday and spoke to members of the Allegheny County Emergency Child Health Committee. He is state chairman, and has organized 25 county committees to carry on the work.

Dr. Hamill said:

MALNUTRITION PERIL

"What evidences we have indicate that malnutrition increased during the past autumn and winter. Malnutrition, is, as Gov. Pinchot commented, a greater danger to the children of the country than the World War, and a bigger problem.

"Proper food will go a long way toward relieving it, but many cases, far gone, will show up in the years to come.

"The western counties are by far the worst, particularly Beaver County. Fayette County has 40,000 families on the relief rolls. We don't know now what the status of malnutrition is. But we are going to find out. indications point to 25 per cent.

"Cutting down the milk quotas, due to a shortage of money, has aggravated the situation. One of our principal purposes is to find the causes and report what remedies can be applied to the state government.

DISEASE THREAT

"It's coincidental that tuberculosis in on the increase among children. This is due to malnutrition, which doesn't lead to specific diseases, but breaks down resistance and makes the child susceptible to any. If there had been an epidemic, all these children would be in a bad way."

The examinations, Dr. Hamill said, will be made by members of the medical societies of the various counties. Prior to a recent appropriation, the physicians in charge paid their own expenses. Now the state pays traveling expenses only. Dr. T. H. Price, of the Children's Hospital is chairman of the Allegheny County committee.

PENSION GIVEN GRIFFITH

The new county pension law has been evaded by County Commissioners W. D. Mansfield and C. M. Barr in affording a way for former County Maintenance Engineer E. A. Griffith to retire on pension. Griffith, for 26 years a county employe, was given the opportunity to resign or be dismissed after J. W. Butler, McKeesport contractor, declared Griffith as having demanded and received $1,550 before road estimates would be approved for payment.

Last week the Commissioners gave Griffith the opportunity to resign and the same day they named Park H. Martin, former Bellevue burgess, to succeed him. Griffith, however, was unable to resign on pension despite his 26 years service. A new law which went into effect June 1 provides that an employe must be 60 years of age to be eligible.

The Commissioners yesterday had a private meeting at which it was agreed to accept Griffith's application for pension dated May 31. The first two weeks of June which he works, will be given to him in lieu of a vacation.

Extra! Aircaster Tells All; Again Interviews Self

By AIRCASTER

Wherein the radio interviewer once more essays a double role and interviews himself:

Q.—What is the final setup for the Sunday broadcast which Will Rogers has deserted and in which Fred Stone did such a swell job Sunday?

A.—The set-up now will feature Arthur Brisbane, as has been announced, and the master of ceremonies will be Walter Kelly, who became famous in the role of "The Virginia Judge."

Q.—Have you heard any reports about the magazine which was first to employ Floyd Gibbons, returning?

A.—I have. The publishers are looking about for an editorial commentator, and maybe it will be Edwin C. Hill, if he can get permission to work before an NBC mike.

Q.—What has become of George Givot?

A.—The Greek ambassador of good will bobs up tonight with Ben Bernie's band from Chicago.

Q.—What do you think of the rivalry between Dick Leibert and Lew White?

A.—I like 'em both, and I think Col. Stoopnagle should step in and challenge the pair.

Q.—Is it true the voice of experience received problem mail from actual radio performers?

A.—Yes. The voice, by the way, quits commercially, July 24, but will resure in September. Just this week, he opened a letter from a radio tenor. The tenor is in a jam. He was foolish enough to respond to a lady fan's postal invitations to visit her home. Since meeting her, he has been hounded by the love-sick dame. The voice will tell him how to give her the air a week from Wednesday.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Highland Park reservoir, a favorite retreat for those who want to escape the heat or indulge in healthful promenading, held a new fascination for hundreds of outdoor devotees last Sunday.

The walking activities ceased while all the hikers, strollers, or sitters-around crowded the rail to watch the parade of hundreds of fish, big ones, too.

No, the city didn't stock the reservoir. Fish always were there. They just picked last Sunday to show off. Do they hurt the water? No. In fact the city engineers claim they are beneficial as they keep the water always stirred up. The mystery is how they got there. Perhaps, says one of the engineers, a bird carried the eggs and dropped them into the reservoir where they fertilized.

The pool was drained three or four years ago, and even at that time there were carp and bass, some of them 24 inches long.

In these days of the four-meals-for-a-dollar-and-a-half contest an East End Globe-Trotter tells of preparing the food for 39 unexpected out-of-town guests, the total cost being three cents more than a dollar and that for two meals a piece. The question is not how she did it, but how did she survive doing the dishes?

There is a serious movement under way to designate June 19 as Wellinger Day. It was the thirty-second anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wellinger, the wedding anniversary of Mrs. A. J. Veraldi, nee Madelaine Wellinger, and the wedding day of Anita G. Wellinger to Regis J. Meiser.

The Rev. S. J. Schramm, who officiated, performed the same ceremony for mamma and papa Wellinger years ago.

Secret Marriages Are Found Out Eventually

Secret marriages—do they ever work?

Are you wondering, dreaming, thinking how wonderful and romantic it would be if you could just slip away and marry the Boy Friend, and keep it a delicious secret?

Hundreds of youngsters have just such dreams, especially in these days of lean purses and leaner hopes of housekeeping. "Heartbroken" was such a one—and tried it.

But now—listen!

Dear Elsie Robinson:

Will you please help me? I am in trouble and don't know what to do.

Ten months ago I was secretly married to the boy who had been my sweetheart since school days. At first I didn't want to do it, but he persuaded me. He was in danger of losing his job because he was a single man. We started to save money, planning to go to housekeeping this year. I only saw him weekends because I had moved to another city.

About two months ago he sent a letter to my father, telling about our marriage and saying he wanted a divorce. He gave no reason, except that he had just ceased to care for me. But I have since learned that he has been going out with another girl since last August.

This girl is two years older than he, and she is his mental and social inferior; but he declares that he will have her at any cost, even bigamy or ruining my life. He flaunts her in front of our mutual friends, who now know of our marriage. How can he be so cruel?

STILL LOVES HIM

Should I write to this girl, explaining my love for my husband and asking her to please give him back to me? She knows that he is a married man and is spending all his money and savings on her.

He refuses to see me or to answer my letters, yet in spite of this I still love him, and can't divorce him because of this love. We had always been happy, and this was all so sudden. I really can't understand it at all.

Please tell me what I should do. HEARTBROKEN.

What'll you do, honey?

Well, what is there to do now—except let him go?

You started out all wrong in the first place. If you married at all you should have been married before the world, and not hidden your happiness away like a shameful secret.

You should have started in to make your life together then and there, instead of moving away out of his life—letting him have all the joy of being a husband, yet relieving him of all the consequences. And now you're going to pay the heavier price.

Why was marriage invented? That was why, youngster. So women wouldn't have to pay the heavier price—so men would have to face consequences—so the two would face life together, carrying equal shares of the load.

CAN'T HOLD HIM

And if a woman won't take advantage of the law — if she thinks it's so "thrilling" to laugh at conventions—well, her laugh usually does a fadeout pronto, sister! For if she won't respect marriage, marriage won't shelter her, as you now know! So now the only thing you can do is cross off that mistake and build a new life for yourself.

"But I can't let him go! I love him!" you object. Yes, I know. But, after all, you can't hold him against his will. Whether you love him or not, he is out of your life.

If you accept that fact, and call it quits, you'll be giving yourself a chance for a new deal.

"But this girl isn't good enough for him!" you cry. "I must save him from her!" I know you think that, but you're mistaken, little girl. Maybe she isn't good enough for him, but that isn't up to you. He'll have to find that out for himself. He'll have to stub his own toe, for himself.

So, don't write to the girl. It wouldn't do any good, and it would make you unhappy. Forget and make a new life for yourself. I know it won't be easy. But you can still find happiness if you will leave the dead past and go ahead to where it is waiting.

Husbands Seeking New Wives are Given Some Advice by Fay King

YOU'RE MORE SUSPICIOUS OF OTHER WOMEN THAN MY WIFE EVER WAS OF YOU!
YEAH? WELL DON'T FORGET THAT I KNOW HOW I GOT YOU AWAY FROM HER!
OURS IS A GREAT LOVE!
SO WAS OURS- UNTIL YOU CAME!
I'LL GO EVERYWHERE WITH YOU! WE'RE NOT GOING TO BE SEPARATED FOR A SINGLE DAY!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Many philandering husbands have been released by their wives and have soon afterward been married to the ones they preferred to their wives.

Quite a few have discovered to their dismay that their previous marriages were freedom compared to their new marriages. For no wives are more suspicious than those who from experience know all the tricks of capturing husbands from former wives. It is not surprising that the new wives seldom let the husbands out of their sight.

And the philandering husbands soon begin to look more henpecked and browbeaten in their new marriages than they ever did when they went about as martyrs of unhappy marriages.

It is more difficult to pretend to be happier than you are than to seem more miserable than you are.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Gunman Attempts to Carry Madge Away

I had not long to wait for the answer as to the man who had made the queer, choking sound as the last revolver shot rang out. I heard Dicky's voice in harsh, anxious questioning.

"Hugh, old man, did they get you?"

"No. Are you all right?"

"Yes."

There was something queer about the sound of their voices, then I remembered that both men had the trick of throwing their voices to make them sound a little away from the places where they really were. Nick and Tony had fired at the sound of Hugh's voice. But Hugh's aim had been accurate. Was one of the gangsters dead or so desperately wounded that he no longer counted in the battle?

Would those other guns sound again? I waited breathlessly, but they did not, and Hugh spoke again:

"Come out of there with your hands up."

There was no response, and for almost a minute there was a tense silence, while I wondered if I imagined that the grass back of me was rustling with something else beside the wind which had risen during the few minutes preceding Dicky's descent. Then before I could do more than open my mouth to scream, a bulky figure towered above me, a powerful hand went over my mouth, and, caught up in Nick's hateful grasp, I was being carried back toward the fence and his car.

SHOOTS GANGSTER

He must have deserted Tony at the first opportunity, and, guided by my call to Dicky must have circled back to seize me. And by the time Hugh and Dicky realized what he had done, he might be able to get to the car and beyond pursuit.

For a futile second or two, I struggled, then lay perfectly still, waiting my chance to scream. Then there came to me the consciousness that my right arm was not held as tightly as the rest of my body, that I could move my right hand and forearm, and that my little silencer pistol was within reach of my fingers.

I compelled my muscles to slowness, though they ached with the impulse to feverish action. With infinite pains, I flexed my fingers around the handle of the tiny weapon, drew it out and without Nick's suspecting that I was doing anything save futilely struggling against him, I brought it up close to the wrist so close to my face, and fired.

There was only the slightest report—the small toy-like weapon was not called a "silencer" without reason—and I am sure Nick had not the slightest idea what had happened to him. But my shot had been a lucky one—it evidently had shattered a bone in the wrist, causing excruciating pain, and Nick not only took his hand from my mouth, but loosened his hold on me as well as he gave vent to an agonized howl, followed by a burst of profanity.

FALL SAVES LIFE

But my own lungs had not been idle. His hand had no sooner dropped from my mouth than I called, "Dicky, Dicky! He's carrying me off!" At the same moment, twisting, kicking, biting, I got myself free and started to run toward Dicky and Hugh, shouting at the top of my voice.

I had gone but a few steps, however, when I stumbled and fell, despair clutching at my heart. But the fall saved my life, for Nick in a rage had fired at me as I ran, and the bullet whistled over my head.

The next minute there was a fusillade of shots. Toward me Dicky and Hugh were racing, firing as they ran. And then from the direction of the field there came what seemed an army of men, though in reality there were but four or five.

"Spread out, Harry," Dicky shouted. "Don't let this beast get away."

Nick fired no more shots. Turning, stooping, zigzagging, he started to run toward the fence while with a high joyous whoop, Harry Underwood and his comrades joined Dicky and Hugh in the chase.

I am to be engaged next month and I would appreciate it if you will please tell me how to go about my engagement.

I am to have a dinner for close relatives and I want to have a party for friends after the dinner.

We are both very popular and have many friends, too many to invite all to the party, but we would like them to know of our engagement. U.

Your plans for announcing your engagement are perfect, so far . . . the announcement-dinner for your close relatives, and the more general party for your close friends. Then the perfect way of making the announcement to your other friends is for you and your fiance to write notes, telling of your engagement, to those friends who are not to be invited to the party. This is all that you need to do. The notes should be written so that they arrive a day or so before this date on which you are having the announcement parties.

Also, if you wish, your mother and father send a formal note of announcement - of - the - engagement to the newspapers. This announcement should be sent so that it will appear in the papers on the day after your announcement parties.

Tea Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please give me the correct form for a tea, using the visiting card? READER.

If there is an address engraved on the card, it will be engraved in the lower right corner. If it isn't engraved on the card, we must write it in this lower right corner.

Then in the opposite corner we write the day and the date on the first line, and the hours underneath. If possible, we should avoid abbreviations.

The card would read like this:

Mrs. John Allen Well

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

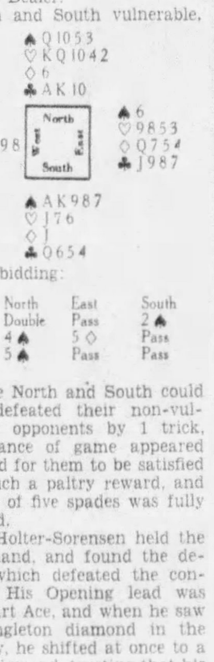
Interesting Defense

Many players, defending a close contract, fear the underlead of an Ace or an Ace-King suit because of the chance that it may give the Declarer an extra trick over his contract. As a matter of fact, whether an extra trick is made or a player is held merely to his contract is a matter of small moment, indeed. The task of the defense is to defeat the contract, and any tricks that are put in jeopardy in an attempt to bring about this result are well-worthwhile sacrifices.

Mr. S. Holter-Sorensen, of Oslo, Norway, evidently thoroughly understands this principle of defense, as the interesting hand shown below, which was played in Norway recently, discloses.

West, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Double	Pass	2 ♠
3 ◇	4 ♠	5 ◇	Pass
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

While North and South could have defeated their non-vulnerable opponents by 1 trick, the chance of game appeared too good for them to be satisfied with such a paltry reward, and the bid of five spades was fully justified.

Mr. Holter-Sorensen held the West hand, and found the defense which defeated the contract. His Opening lead was the heart Ace, and when he saw the singleton diamond in the Dummy, he shifted at once to a small diamond, trusting that his partner had the Queen, and knowing that if he did, a heart would be returned for the setting trick. The results were as he hoped, but even had South held the diamond Queen and thereby made not only his contract, but an overtrick, the play would still have been exactly correct. The trick thus possibly sacrificed had a value of but 30 points. The trick that was actually gained saved the rubber.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 N T
2 ♡	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 N T	Pass	3 N T
Pass	Pass	Pass

You, West, hold:

♠ 5 4 ♡ A Q 10 9 2 ◇ Q 7 6 ♣ J 8 3

What card do you lead?

Answer: The heart Queen. There is no good short-suit lead in this hand. From the bidding, the King of hearts is probably in Dummy, and the Knave either in Declarer's or your partner's hand. By leading the Queen, the King is forced from Dummy, and when partner obtains the lead he can lead through Declarer's Knave. If you lead the Ten of hearts, the Knave in Declarer's hand may take the first trick, and the doubly guarded King in Dummy will suffice as a second stopper. Of course, if the King and Knave are both in Dummy, the situation is hopeless. The heart-Queen lead offers the best chance of success.

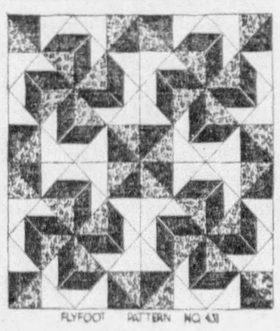
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



By LAURA WHEELER

Colonial architecture, based on the classic Greek, employed the fret motif among others in the decorations of doorways, mantles and other trim in the house. It is no wonder then that this fret was adapted by the quilt-makers of those days, and comes to us as the Flyfoot. The name is really a corruption of the Greek name for the fret. But whatever its origin it is a most attractive and popular quilt with the smaller windmill block alternation with the larger fret.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York City.

Depends on the Time

If you have time to stir the custard constantly and see that it does not stick to the pan, an ordinary saucepan may be used, but if you are busy around the kitchen with other things by all means cook your custard in a double boiler.

Household Hints

When "backing" pictures with brown paper moisten the latter first with water before sticking it. This will insure a taut surface when dry.

After removing all dirt from cupboards and drawers, sprinkle a little turpentine or eucalyptus oil on a rag and rub well into corners. This will help to keep moths away.

Keep your butter papers to grease your pie dishes and to put over your pies before they go in the oven. They are also useful when you are baking fish or reheating anything. Cover the dish with a butter paper and all will be well.

Youth Warned on Repeal At Harrisburg Meeting

HARRISBURG, June 20.—(AP.)—Warned against minimizing the importance of moral issues involved in repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, youthful advocates of prohibition gathered here today for the five-day annual state meeting of the young people's division of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Addressing a pre-convention gathering last night, the Rev. J. Robert Black, field representative of the Presbyterian Christian Board of Education, declared too much stress is being laid upon the industrial economic and political angles of the repeal question.

He said:

"Beer in the present form is only the opening wedge of the brewers and unless the young people are educated against the use of it, drunkenness will once more become a national problem."

Mrs. Ella B. Black, state president of the W. C. T. U., and other state and county officers are listed among the speakers to address the delegates who were welcomed today by Dr. Arthur E. Brown, headmaster of Harrisburg Academy, where the sessions are to be held.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Bad Food Is a Summer Danger

During the summer months food easily spoils and becomes contaminated with germs. One of the bad food infections is caused by the "clostridium botulinum," the name of a dangerous germ. It causes a disease called "botulism." I am glad to say that this disease is not as frequently encountered as it was in former times.

Dr. Copeland

Botulism was especially common when little was known about proper refrigeration, the sterillization of food and its proper canning, as well as the preservation of meats, vegetables and other food products. It is more frequently found in home canning, than in the commercial preparations. Serious outbreaks of botulism have been traced to imperfect home canning of ripe olives, string beans, asparagus, corn and apricots.

This disease never occurs when food is fresh, clean and served immediately after cooking. Many persons are misled by the belief that boiling destroys all germs and dangerous spores. This is only partly true. Food, too, that has been boiled but allowed to remain exposed, is easily re-contaminated.

Such infection can be prevented by always keeping clean, fresh food on ice and properly covered. Bear in mind that during warm weather such foods as milk, vegetables and meats, readily and quickly spoil if allowed to remain exposed to the air.

I advise all housewives to avoid purchasing meat from the butcher who allows his meat to remain on his block instead of hanging it on a hook in a cold chamber. Do not purchase any foodstuffs that are not properly protected from flies, dust and germs.

Modern methods of canning assure the housewife of a safe and staple food during the summer and winter months. The canned product is scientifically prepared and free from contaminated germs and bacteria.

There is one danger that I would like to warn against. When you open a sealed can, serve the contents immediately. If you do not intend using the entire quantity, empty the balance into a glass or china dish and place it on the ice. This will protect against spoiling and contamination. Many cases of food poisoning are caused by overlooking this simple precaution.

Many housewives prefer home canned products. This is safe, of course, if adequate measures are taken for proper canning. Only use fresh and clean foods. The jars and containers must be carefully sterilized before using. They must be boiled at a temperature high enough to destroy all germs, and sealed airtight to prevent spoiling.

All this advice is not needed by the experienced home keeper. She knows exactly how to proceed and the products of her kitchen are safe and delicious.

NEW PRINCETON HEADS TAKES OFFICE

PRINCETON, N. J., June 20.—(AP.)—Prof. Harold Willis Dodds was inaugurated as fifteenth president of Princeton University today following annual commencement exercises.

Gov. A. Harry Moore lauded him "not only as a political scientist, but a practical statesman."

Dodds eulogized the late president of the university, Dr. John Grier Hibben. Prof. Dodds at one time attended Grove City College.

Honorary degrees went to former Judge Samuel Seabury, of New York; former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson; Andre Maurois, French novelist; James Truslow Adams, historian; Herbert Putnam, director of the Library of Congress; Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory; Frank Latimer Janeway, general presbyter of Buffalo and Niagara; Clarence John Hicks, industrialist, and Edward D. Duffield, who has been acting president of the university.

Before relinquishing his post as acting president, Dr. Duffield announced the election of Harry Hill Langenberg, of St. Louis, class of 1900, and Richard Matthews Griffith, of Pasadena, Cal., class of 1918, as alumni trustees for four year terms. He also presented to Keene Fitzpatrick, retired track coach and football trainer, an engrossed copy of the minutes of the board of trustees extolling him.

Bank Burglar Alarm Sounded by Mistake

Police radio cars, motorcycle men and patrolmen were dispatched to the Farmers Deposit National Bank by the police operator this morning when the institution's burglar alarm sounded in Central Police Station. They were sent back to their station when bank officials said a teller accidently stepped on the alarm button. It was a half hour before the bank opened for business.

'PRETTY BOY' IDENTIFIED IN MASSACRE

KANSAS CITY, June 20.—(AP.)—Whether Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, who previously has killed officers because they had him cornered, has become a paid assassin was a question turned over in the minds of officers seeking to solve the slaying of five here Saturday.

The name of the notorious Oklahoma bank robber and murderer was drawn into the case when a woman witness of the slaying of four officers and Frank Nash, train robber and escaped convict, picked out Floyd's photograph as that of one of the killers.

A year ago Jack Dalton, a former policeman, was slain as he sat in a rural cabin playing cards. An assassin shot through the window. Police blamed a liquor war and soon received reports Floyd had executed the killing for a fixed sum.

GIVES DESCRIPTION

A federal officer termed "very good" the identification of Floyd by Mrs. Lottie West, Travelers' Aid Society worker, who saw the massacre in front of the Union Station. Authorities have theorized the killers sought to liberate Nash, a desperate character, and killed him because they failed to recognize him. Mrs. West said:

"The man with the machine gun appeared to be about 30 years of age, round faced, ruddy complexion, wearing a dark blue suit with a white shirt and a turned down Panama hat. I would think he weighed nearly 200 pounds."

Officers have been informed Floyd came to Kansas City Friday night after releasing Sheriff William (Jack) Killingsworth, of Polk County, Mo., who was kidnaped by the outlaw at Bolivar.

Killingsworth's comment was terse and guarded when asked what he thought about Mrs. West's identification. He was asked:

"Don't you know it would be a big feather in your cap to capture Floyd?"

He replied:

"A feather in my grave, you mean."

VICTIMS BURIED

Funeral services were conducted here yesterday for two of the victims, W. J. Grooms and Frank Hermanson, police detectives. The others slain were Otto Reed, McAlester, Okla., chief of police, and Raymond J. Caffrey, special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Nash, who escaped from the Leavenworth Federal Prison in 1930 as a trusty, is to be buried in Paragould, Ark., the home town he last visited about 12 years ago.

The wirespread search for the slayers turned today to South Texas after W. L. Scott, Corpus Christi plumber, told officers two men in a muddy tan-colored sedan bearing two machine guns had asked him the road to Brownsville.

Sneeze Begins Odd Chain

Heather Angel sneezed and the results that strangely affected three Fox studio girls, a company of technicians and the production of "Berkeley Square." It caused two girls to work overtime, one to miss an engagement, and the other to arrive home late and discover a burglar ransacking her home. Another girl, motoring downtown, was grazed by a bootlegger's car and was forced to go to police headquarters to identify the man.

The sneeze, during the filming of "Berkeley Square," burst open a tight-fitting Eighteenth Century gown worn by Miss Angel. The delay, while repairs were being made, caused the postponement of that scene and the scurrying of the company to another stage for further sequences requiring a different gown.

All that because of a sneeze.

'Another Language' Heard At the Willows With Favor

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Neither distance nor the thermometer can daunt thespian ambition, as was proved last night at the Willows, where the Allegheny laves the shores of shady Oakmont. In an ample auditorium was gathered an ample audience to witness a performance of "Another Language" on a specially built stage. It was the premiere of the Stage Guild, a group of players who inaugurated their summer season with Rose Franken's drama, never before seen in Pittsburgh. It would be high praise to say they did not fail; but the fact is that they succeeded beyond reasonable expectations. For "Another Language" is not an easy thing to produce.

Mr. Seibel

The difficulty lies in the selection of people to play characters so characteristic. Beckhard, producing the drama in New York, had his pick of at least a thousand actors. The result was that you thought each part had been written for the person that played it—or each person selected for the only part they could ever hope to play. Madge Blount MacQueen, who staged the performance at the Willows, had a small group to spread over a cast of 11.

It is remarkable that they fitted so well into their niches.

AN ASSORTED FAMILY

Every one of the 11 is a Hallam. This assorted family represents all gradations of cheap vulgarity and conversational piffle. Just the same they think they are the salt of the earth.

One of the sons has married a wife who is different. Another of the sons has a son who is different. These two speak another language than the remainder of the tribe.

Aunt and nephew are arty. It is true their art is merely another variety of piffle—the only difference between them and the others is that they have inferiority complexes and the others have only the inferiority. That's the sad part of it.

The nephew falls in love with the aunt—he explodes when they treat her as they treat each other—she sympathizes with him when his artistic dreams are laughed to scorn.

That is all there is to the play—neurosis and frustration, and 11 well-drawn, human, pitiful and ridiculous characters.

THEY PLAY VERY WELL

The company at the Willows play very well. Madeleine Skelly Foust as the mother and Blanche B. Levy as the misunderstood daughter-in-law did the most consistently effective acting, while Lillian Malone and Edrie Ann Taylor as two of the vulgar daughters-in-law furnished delicious comedy. Ray Hurd as the father of the arty grandson gave a very natural characterization; Robert Wilson, Frank L. Furlong, Lester C. Myers, Jr., and Harold Daniels as the other men were adequate with occasional flashes of excellence. Elizabeth Drake did not seem to fit into the queer lot, and Alexander Kann as Jerry was over-sentimental and artificial.

To have seen the Broadway production perfectly acted by players most carefully selected is to know what terrific odds the Stage Guild had to contend against. They did very well indeed, and the production on the crowded stage also was most creditable, although one picture inconsiderately fell off a wall and a plaster cast obdurately refused to be smashed on the floor. Such minor disasters could not daunt the players any more than the heat wave. "Another Language" at the Willows was a worth-while translation from Broadway.

A new revised production of "Over the Coals," revue that was recently a hit in the Pitt as a Tech student production, now emerges as a touring "road" show that will have its first presentation as such without the sponsorship of the institution, tomorrow night on the stage of the Twentieth Century Club, Oakland. As an independent venture, it has the advisory aid of a board including Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, James W. Macfarlane, Brandon Smith and Chester M. Wallace. It has bookings in Connellsville, Washington, Pa., Wheeling, Steubenville and Aliquippa. William G. Beal and Herman Liveright, who were prominent in the production of the piece originally, are the promoters. Each is possessed of talent, as well as enthusiasm for the stage, that should eventually land them behind the footlights professionally. "Over the Coals" revealed plenty of novelty when first presented. Seats are on sale at Kaufmann's first floor service desk and Hotel Schenley.

The Stage Guild having had its baptism of the public glance last night, our next introduction to summer drama will occur next Monday evening in the theater of Shadyside Academy, Fox Chapel, where the Pittsburgh Summer Playhouse, a subscription undertaking, will present plays every other week, each production to continue for a week. "Springtime for Henry," comedy by Benn W. Levy, never presented here, is being intensively rehearsed this week in preparation for the bow of the Summer Playhouse.

Lupe Velez Picked to Play Lead in Movie Revue

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 20.—Broadway went so hard for Lupe Velez and Jimmy Durante that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is putting the peppery Mexican star into its new revue, "Hollywood Party."

Studio officials feel that with her ability to sing, dance and clown, Lupe ought to be a natural in musicals anyway.

Apparently the revue supersedes all other plans for the actress. She was to go into "Joe Palooka," but that fell through. "Malibu" and "Laughing Boy," also scheduled for Lupe, will not be ready for some time.

Interesting that Harry Rapf will be associate producer on the revue. It was he who discovered the Mexican star in a dancing act six years ago and gave her her first screen chance.

Everything seems to be okay between Lupe and Johnny Weissmuller. The tall ex-swimming champ has retired from circulation as far as other girls are concerned. He has Lupe on his arm wherever he goes. Saw them dancing at the cocoanut grove and they were much engrossed with each other.

* * *

Amusing, the story of a moneyed fellow who came out here and set out to produce a picture. One evening, he met a studio official at a party and began to question him about the business. He asked how long a feature picture should be.

"Oh, seven reels," the executive replied.

"Ye Gods!" the newcomer exclaimed. "I'm already finished!"

* * *

A second test today will determine it, but Ricardo Cortez is almost set as Greta Garbo's leading man . . . The date for the marriage of Josephine Saenz and John Wayne is June 24. And, in case you didn't know, John's real name is Marion Mitchell Morrison.

Vagaries of motion picture fans are inexhaustible. William Bakewell regularly receives a $5 bill from an anonymous admirer. He turns it over to the motion picture relief fund. Carole Lombard similarly receives a $1 bill every week.

Due to her delicate health, Constance Bennett has been ordered to give up tennis and take up golf. The star is busy conferring on a story these days. At the preview of her last picture, she was squired by Gilbert Roland.

All in a Day By MARK HELLINGER

Through Other Eyes.

I SUPPOSE we have all met men like Mr. Brown, who is the central figure in today's little story. Supreme egotists such as he exist in all walks of life. It doesn't take money or success to breed ego. Ham prize fighters, for instance, may be hopelessly down and out. But that does not prevent them from being as egotistical a crew as ever lived.

All his life, Mr. Brown has had things happen in beautiful fashion. He was born into big money and as soon as he was old enough to earn his own living he turned the big money into even bigger dough. Everything in life had come to him in a simple manner. So it was little wonder that he developed an ego that should have been placed on exhibition.

At the age of 35, Mr. Brown was a big figure in Wall Street. He was a harsh man and he treated his employes as though they were so many insects. He never argued with anyone for the simple reason that he would give no one else a chance to venture an opinion. If he said something, he knew that something was right.

If Mr. Brown thought he was going to go through life exactly as he had been doing he was doomed to disappointment. What happened? The same that always happens. A woman stepped into his life. And right then and there Mr. Brown had something on his mind besides money for the first time in his life.

This woman was no fool. From all accounts, she was an extremely lovable character. She, too, came from wealthy people. And she, too, had had her life handed to her on a silver platter.

But she differed from Mr. Brown in many, many ways. Money, in her eyes, was something that could be used to help others. She did a great deal of charity work, and she enjoyed every moment of it. She was simple. And democratic. And unassuming.

In due time, Mr. Brown made his proposal. But before she accepted him the girl spoke very frankly to him.

"I love you," she asserted, "and I think we will be very happy together. But there is one thing I must ask of you.

"Try and change some of your ideas. Don't be so harsh when you meet people who have not had the things that life has given you.

"And don't ask me to give up my charity work. I love to help others. And I want to go on helping them. We have all the money we will ever need. Let's do something for others if we can."

For a few months Mr. Brown was a new man. Who was it said that a new groom sweeps clean? Oh, well, never mind it. At any rate, Mr. Brown suddenly became a human being.

Mr. Brown was too much of an egotist to change for any great length of time. By the time a year had passed, he was back in his old habits once again. If anything, he was worse.

He began to pick on his wife. Everything she did was wrong.

The woman stood his abuse for several reasons. First of all, she loved him. The other reasons do not matter. But things could not go on as they were for too long a term. She was too decent a woman to stand her husband's tirades forever. A parting was absolutely inevitable.

It finally happened. And it happened in a strange way. They came out of a theater one night and the wife saw a blind man picking his way through the crowd. As her husband attempted to urge her into their car she opened her purse, walked over to the blind man, gave him some change and then returned.

Mr. Brown was furious.

"You're an absolute fool," he told her, "keeping me waiting and making a spectacle of yourself before all those people. Did you have to give that faker anything? Did you?"

His wife said nothing. Mr. Brown went on at a great rate. Finally, as they were nearing their home, Mrs. Brown spoke.

"This is the end, my dear," she said quietly. "You and I are through. It's not the episode of the blind man tonight. That's but one tiny thing in the midst of many."

Six months later they were more than separated. A divorce was granted.

Funny, the way things turn out. If you read your papers carefully you will probably know Mr. Brown's name at this point of the story. For the papers devoted quite some space about a year ago to a very unfortunate accident that happened to Mr. Brown.

As he passed a construction job on the East Side something flew into his left eye. He rubbed the eye because it annoyed him. But he didn't go to a doctor. He had no time for doctors. He was too busy making money to waste on doctors.

The eye grew worse. The pain grew so severe that he was compelled to see a specialist. The doctor treated the eye, but it grew worse and worse. Soon the pain had spread to the other eye. And then the doctor decided that an operation was the only thing that would save Brown's life.

When Mr. Brown was escorted from the hospital his left eye was out entirely. And the right one, while still in his head, was useless to him. Mr. Brown was blind...

Who's taking care of him now? You know, don't you? Mrs. Brown came back to him immediately—and she's been with him ever since.

Funny thing about that, too. She says she has never been happier in all her life...

Mild—luxuriant of lather—pure and creamy-white—it's the Soap of Beautiful Women.

Modern in its formula—modern in its lovely green and yellow package—a soap of Today, sealed in Cellophane to keep it fresh and quick-lathering—ideally suited to the delicate skin.

This is what the girl in the picture says of Camay: "I love its delicate perfume, and my skin feels so refreshed after I've used it."

"I've only recently changed to Camay and already my skin feels softer and looks better," said a pretty young society girl.

"What a gentle soap it is!" said a club woman. "It's mild enough for my complexion."

Camay is a 1933 soap—far outshining any other soap that has gone before.

60-Foot Mural Feature Of Women's Exhibit At Chicago's Fair

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Club women attending the international congress of women at the Century of Progress Exposition will be especially interested in the exhibit of the National Council of Women and the background for the exhibit, the 60-foot mural which the distinguished American artist, Hildreth Meiere, is painting.

The portraits of seven living women will be displayed in the mural. These portraits are of Cora Wilson Stewart, founder of the Moonlight Schools; Dr. Florence Rena Sabin, famed for her medical research; Dr. Alice Hamilton, first woman to be given a professorship at Harvard; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, suffrage leader; Judge Florence F. Allen, first and only woman to sit on a Supreme Court bench; Amelia Earhart, aviatrix, and Frances Perkins, first woman member of a President's cabinet.

These portraits figure in the narrow border of the mural, the major portion of which shows through symbolic figures of heroic size the progress of women in the last 100 years in this country. Women's activities in education, temperance, abolition, social service, suffrage, world peace and business and professions are pictured.

DARK SHEERS ARE COOL AND REFRESHING FOR TOWN WEAR

THERE COMES a day every summer when you're bored with prints and light colors, and long for the suavity of sleek, dark clothes. Tailored sheers are the sort you'll live in in town for luncheon dates, shopping, matinees and so on and on and on. They're almost the coolest idea in fashion for town days.

* * *

BEGINNING AT 9 o'clock, if you're coming in town that early, you can wear them for the rest of the day. If there are dainty lingerie touches—so much the better. Such crisp accessories help carry you through the later afternoon into the evening for informal after-dark occasions. It is a paradox that a dark dress can look so infinitely cool!

* * *

IN ONE OF New York's beer gardens, these three dresses were sketched. The sheer on the extreme right will be a favorite, for it will be the last of the summer things to go out of style. The eye is immediately attracted to the pagoda shoulders and flared skirt, fashions that will continue for fall. A host of pleated white pique frills build up the pagoda shoulders and spotlight the sleeves. The skirt flares with each step. A love of a dress, with just a tiny hint of formality.

* * *

THE SHEER (sketched in back) is in reality a very practical suit, because the silhouette is so chic and because it combines two of the season's smart colors, pale and dark eel grey. This latter color has already been adopted by the shoe world, which will make the ensemble idea easy to carry out, and give the color an official stamp of approval. Under the three-quarter length coat is a dress cut with exquisite detail. For a day that winds up in a quiet dinner tete-a-tete, nothing could be lovelier.

* * *

DISCOVERY

Almost daily people tell us: "Please put back our telephone!" • Without it, they were isolated. Invitations passed them by; news escaped them. Instead of saving, they more than spent the telephone's cost on personal trips and calls from "public" telephones. • They found that the small cost of having a telephone in their home was more than repaid each month in convenience and in time and money actually saved.

Are you trying to manage without a telephone? Why deprive yourself of its convenience when you can have one in your home for less than 10 cents a day?

JUDGE PATTERSON BOOM FOR MAYOR GROWS

POLITICS

Evans Seeks Place On Common Pleas Bench

By MARK SHIELDS

Assistant United States District Attorney Raymond D. Evans, announcing his candidacy today for a nomination as a candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court, is the first of what promises to be a long and formidable list of aspirants for the three places on that bench to be filled by the voters this year.

Mr. Shields

Republican County Chairman William H. Coleman is considering entering the lists, the decision of Judge James R. Macfarlane to retire being an inducement. Mr. Coleman was reluctant to run if all sitting judges—the other two being Judges Harry H. Rowand and Ralph H. Smith—were to be candidates. Mr. Coleman probably will decide his course next week.

Judges Rowand and Smith will run.

County Judge M. A. Musmanno will not be far behind Mr. Evans in coming into the field, according to friends of the McKees Rocks jurist.

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, who has been active on behalf of clean election legislation, and who was an unsuccessful candidate—as was Mr. Evans—two years ago, also is certain to again attempt an ascent to the bench. Mr. Lindsay has been extremely active for months, and it may be said that his campaign began almost as soon as the ballots were adversely counted in 1931.

* * *

Both Tickets to Carry All Candidates

This list of names alone is sufficient to insure a judicial campaign with a vigor almost as much as that which marked the great battle of 1927 when Judges James H. Gray, Frank P. Patterson and the late Richard W. Martin cracked an organization slate. Mr. Lindsay in that year managed the campaign of Judge Gray, associated with County Commissioner C. M. Barr. It was a great example of "grass roots" management, the field being thoroughly covered.

There will be other attorneys in the race before primary day, and there will be a contest within the Democratic as well as the Republican primary. Practically every candidate will enter both primaries, and members of each party can do so whatever their attitude might have been toward the party raiding bill vetoed by Gov. Pinchot.

That bill prevented candidates seeking the nomination in more than one primary, but an exception was written into the bill expressly exempting judges from that stipulation. The theory was that judges should be non-partisan and non-political, a sound proposition.

Campaigns will not be new to any of the judicial candidates already listed.

Judge Rowand first was district attorney, then a successful candidate for judge 10 years ago.

Judge Musmanno twice was elected to the Legislature, then to County Court.

Judge Smith was a candidate for district attorney, and made a surprisingly good showing, considering the odds against him.

Attorneys Lindsay and Evans were candidates for judge two years ago, and each received a substantial vote.

Mr. Coleman is a veteran campaigner.

Evans Cites Strength Of Two Years Ago

In announcing his candidacy Mr. Evans said:

"Being ambitious to rise in my profession, I was a candidate for judge of the Court of Common Pleas two years ago and more than 90,000 citizen voted for me.

"On a prior occasion, the bar held a referendum and recommended me to the Governor as one of three lawyers qualified for the Common Pleas Court.

"These high compliments, reflecting my integrity and ability, encourage me, and I have decided to submit my name again to the voters of Allegheny County.

"As one of the United States attorneys, I have necessarily had a wide experience preparatory for the bench, and believe I have met the tests of honesty and courage, the first requisites of a good jurist.

"A Judge must not only be learned in the law, but also have an impartial mind and an understanding of life. To pass upon human relations, one must understand them. I started my professional experience with a law firm at the age of 13. After rising from errand boy to stenographer, I sought an education and worked my way through preparatory school and Princeton University. I spent 25 months in the army and was in four major engagements.

"My training, education and experience qualify me to act without prejudice of birth or class and with proper sympathy pass upon the affairs of my fellowmen.

"If elected, I shall conduct myself as I have in the past, treating the office as a public trust, endeavoring to act with patience and courtesy, and never losing sight of the fact that I am the servant of the people."

Board of Education Lets Coal Contracts

With prices subject to federal revision, contracts were let by the supplies committee of the Board of Public Education last night for coal for the city's 163 public schools. The purchase price averaged $2.18 a ton for lump, $1.19 for slack and $4.47 for smokeless coal.

Last year's average was $2.30 for lump, $1.43 for slack and $4.32 for mokeless.

CLAIM HOSIERY STRIKE PERILS RECOVERY

Bosses Urge Employes Await Operation of Roosevelt Plan

READING, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—Conflicting claims becloud the strike situation in Reading and Berks County hosiery mills, but representatives of a majority of the employers in the region warn that "any agitation at this time will tend to disturb" government plans for industrial recovery.

In a statement yesterday a committee, said to represent 95 per cent of the manufacturers in the district, asserted that officials of 18 mills reported only 523 of 13,500 employers were absent from work yesterday, "only four local mills being affected."

"Of these, at least 90 per cent were forced to keep away from the plants because of the forceful action by out-of-town agitators," the statement said.

On the other hand, Edward F. Callaghan, organizer for the American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers, claimed employes of four mills who struck on Saturday still were out yesterday and added that 1,000 employes of the Oakbrook Hosiery Mills had joined the strike.

Urging their employes to await President Roosevelt's approval of plans for putting the industrial recovery act machinery in motion, the manufacturers expressed confidence this approval would be forthcoming in the next few weeks, and that "necessary adjustments in employment and wages" would follow.

Callaghan, however, declared:

"We shall continue to insist that manufacturers ratify the national agreement between the Federation and the National Association of Employes."

Mrs. Roosevelt Outlines Plan to Fight Sweat Shops

NEW YORK, June 20.—(INS.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday outlined a two-fold program for attacking the evils of the sweatshop in the nation's garment industry.

Talking informally with members of the Women's Fashion Group, following a luncheon at the Hotel Roosevelt, at which she was the principal speaker, Mrs. Roosevelt declared she believed the garment workers' problem could be solved first by appealing to the public's conscience, and second, by labeling goods made under satisfactory conditions.

Mrs. Roosevelt told her audience:

"I believe it will be necessary to touch the imagination of women buyers. The garment industry's problem is a national and not specifically a state problem.

"It is difficult to present a problem affecting 100,000 people without pepping up the imagination and bringing home the responsibility of women buyers to those who make the goods.

"This is the only way to bring the problems to the public conscience, and only public conscience can change the situation."

In support of the movement to label all goods made under approved conditions, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"We need to get back to the old standards in this country. We want things that are good. Cheap things can be made under good conditions, and high prices are not always indicative of good conditions."

HENRY RENEWS G. O. P. CHARGES

The Henry-Lawrence political feud was renewed before the Hungry Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday when John M. Henry, expected to be an independent Democratic candidate for Mayor, reiterated his charges of collusion between Allegheny County Democrats and Republicans.

Henry inspired David L. Lawrence, Democratic leader in Allegheny County, to a general denial of the charges when he threw a bomb-shell into the Hungry Club meeting three weeks ago. Yesterday he said:

"I ask you what the postmaster general meant when he asked that there be no conniving with Republicans. I ask you if the so-called leaders have not been weighed in the balance and found wanting."

William B. Foster, a member of the club, replied to Henry:

"If you don't like Dave Lawrence get rid of him. It's a wide open election. I'll be him myself."

WIFE JILTED FOR DANCER SUES

Met at Marathoner's Door by Husband, She Testifies

Her husband jilted her for a marathon dancer, Sophie Heckman, manicurist, of the Penn McKee Hotel, testified in seeking a divorce from Edward V. Heckman.

Mrs. Heckman told Judge Ambrose B. Reid that when she went to Miss Jean Campbell's home her husband answered the door.

Mrs. Heckman produced a newspaper picture showing that Heckman and Miss Campbell had danced together in a marathon at Motor Square Garden. She said:

"My husband struck me. I fell and broke my arm and was unable to use it for six months."

The Heckmans were married March 29, 1924, but separated last year. Mrs. Heckman, mother of one child, lives at 612 Locust street, McKeesport.

AUTO'S VICTIM IDENTIFIED

The body of a man killed by an automobile at North Negley avenue and Columbo street, Sunday night, was identified at the county morgue last night as that of Frank Corton, 64, of 5405 Black street. The identification was made by Albert R. Corton, of 1400 West North avenue, a son.

James Atkinson, 64, of 1221 Ridge avenue, suffered bruises when he was struck by a truck which the driver was backing in Shore avenue near the Manchester Bridge last night. The victim was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 20.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

There ain't but one way of these foreign princes, (or so called titled birds) to prove it to Americans, and that is for one of 'em to marry a poor girl. Then we will know he is a prince. For in all our story book reading, the prince always married the poor girl.

Will Rogers

Mr. Roosevelt went out on what he hoped would be a quiet private cruise. All that followed him was a battleship, three coast guard cutters, three shiploads of newspaper men, and two of camera men. Talk about a gossipy old woman wanting to see and hear everything. American newspapers make an amateur out of her for hanging on the back fence and peeping in the keyhole. If I was him I would make a parachute jump some time, and see if I couldn't get a few seconds of privacy.

Yours, WILL.

The heavy sedan—that of R. D. Unroe, 110 Maple terrace—that left its parking place on Natchez street, Mt. Washington, ran 250 feet, crossed Dilworth avenue, snapped a cable, broke a post, plunged 40 feet over a hill, turning over only when it struck a telegraph pole. Mr. Unroe leaped on, but leaped off when it was too late to stop it. This is a Sun-Telegrah picture.

New Highway-Railroad Truck Gets Test Here

Vehicle Can Travel Over Ground or Tracks

A strange vehicle that finds the going equally practical on highway or railway, a half-ton standard automobile truck is being given its first real test on the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad between Oakmont and Verona.

Whether these tests portend a new era in railroad-bus transportation is a question that time alone will answer, because railroad officials here will say only that the tests are with a view to using the truck for track repair work.

As the truck rolled smoothly along the tracks yesterday near Oakmont motorists stopped their cars along the highway to gaze in wonder at the antics of what they apparently thought was a drunken driver.

SIMPLE OPERATION

But the operation of the "rail-road" truck is very simple; in fact, engineers are wondering why they didn't think of it before this. The truck is an ordinary half-ton machine, equipped with four small flanged wheels that are tucked up when the truck is traveling in the highway.

When the driver decides to take to the tracks he drives onto a crossing, alings the wheels with the rails and lowers the "flanges." While these small steel wheels do not touch the top of the rail, their flanges run well below the rail surface, holding the truck firmly to the tracks. The entire operation is completed in less than two minutes.

If a tire should blow out, the truck would drop a quarter of an inch and would carry the load until repairs could be made, according to railroad men.

CHOICE OF ROUTE

Use of the "rail-truck," with freedom of choice as to route of travel, will extend and simplify road maintenance work and effect increased efficiency, railroad men point out. If tests are sufficiently satisfactory the truck will be used by track supervisors and foremen in handling tools, materials and supplies.

Although officials of the Pennsylvania lines refused to comment, transportation men agreed that the future use of the combination rail and highway principle could easily be extended to freight and passenger service.

COX COMES OUT FOR HERRON

The chief pyrotechnic feature of Father Cox's fireworks show at Forbes Field last night turned out to be the priest's indorsement of John S. Herron for Mayor. Father Cox also indorsed Councilman W. Y. English.

The fireworks pageant being held this week at Forbes Field for the benefit of the Cox relief fund was officially opened by the Mayor.

The Mayor lauded the relief work of Father Cox and appealed to the people to attend the display to assist the cause. Councilman English described Father Cox as "the most outstanding citizen in America."

Other addresses were made by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and Mrs. Sara C. Braun, general chairman of the pageant and member of the Board of Registration Commissioners of Allegheny County.

Before the performance there was an exhibition of drilling by the Homestead Post No. 351, American Legion, and a concert by the Taylor Allderdice High School Band.

Fireworks of nearly every description were displayed. The Battle of St. Mihiel was featured last night. Tonight the Battle of the Seas will be shown.

Father Cox's fund receives a share of the receipts.

Priest Asks City To Pay Relief Debt

The Rev. James R. Cox has asked the city to meet the debt of the Father Cox Relief Fund now totaling $60,343. Mayor John S. Herron has recommended that money be appropriated by Council to pay the obligation from relief funds. Father Cox itemized the debt showing that more than $23,000 was spent for food.

JURIST BIG HOPE OF HERRON FOES

Friends Feel He Would Unite All Groups Opposing 'Bosses'

By MARK SHIELDS

Judge Frank P. Patterson, of Common Pleas Court, is not at this time a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination.

But that does not mean that he will not be, though his personal inclination is not to engage in a political campaign this year.

Judge Patterson has been under an intense and growing pressure from several sources, all demanding that he become a candidate against Mayor John S. Herron. Several conferences have been held on the subject, and upon each occasion Judge Patterson has reiterated his disinclination to seek the mayoralty.

But those beseeching—and demanding—that he run have not been content to accept a negative reply.

They are continuing their importunities, and there are well-grounded reasons for believing that they hope eventually to prevail. At any rate, the final decision is yet to be made, with certain active and passive elements operative which may bring the judge into the field.

WOULD UNITE HERRON FOES

Judge Patterson has been told that he is the single candidate upon whom all anti-Herron elements would unite.

The names of James F. Malone, Councilman P. J. McArdle, former Mayor William A. Magee, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and W. P. Witherow have been considered in numberless discussions, but some flaw was found in each and the circle of talk always traveled back to Patterson.

Representatives of the Citizens' Committee are understood to have been unusually urgent in their discussions with Patterson. This is tantamount to an admission that their original candidate and associate is recognized as lacking in strength sufficient to challenge the power of the city organization.

Similarly, they have said, among themselves, that all elements cannot be fused behind any of the other gentlemen presented. They are not represented as feeling that an anti-Herron campaign without Patterson is foredoomed to defeat, but they believe the chances for success are materially increased by the candidacy of the judge.

'PRACTICAL POLITICS'

Some of the real leaders of the Citizens' Committee, some men not connected with the executive committee which was in the forefront of the fight against former Mayor Charles H. Kline, are reported to have not only pleaded with Patterson to run, but are not to be stopped by initial rebuffs. They have linked the present campaigns with future campaigns in their arguments.

From the side of practical politics, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern also is urging Judge Patterson to run. McGovern for a time was reported to be friendly to Witherow, who was active in the campaign for the late Judge Richard W. Martin in 1929, but he now sees Patterson as the one best bet.

Senator Frank J. Harris is another who would like to see Judge Patterson a candidate, and County Commissioner William D. Mansfield, while not a resident of Pittsburgh, has an interest in the situation through the influence the city administration might wield in a county campaign two years hence, when Mansfield must run again if he wishes to remain on the county board.

On no other candidate is there a similar centralization of opinion.

On the question as to what other potentialities under discussion, and not selected, might do if Patterson was a candidate, it is a fairly

Europe Paying Debt to U. S. In Golf Cups

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Just starting to realize that Europe lets us win golf cups to take our minds off war debts.

We'd be much better off if our diplomats missed more boats.

What we need over there is another Stephen Decatur to toast:

"My country, right or wrong; the gold standard, on or off, and the Treasury, open day and night."

That speech would be greeted with tremendous European enthusiasm, for we begin to suspect the whole conference is about money and the fat cows get milked first.

It's just been one bath after another. We went into the thing with clean hands and pasteurized ideals. We came out with clean pockets and antiseptic postponements.

Having been massaged with the vacuum cleaner let's say bye-bye to our money cheerfully.

We've got to learn our lessons and it's nice of Europe to send us through college.

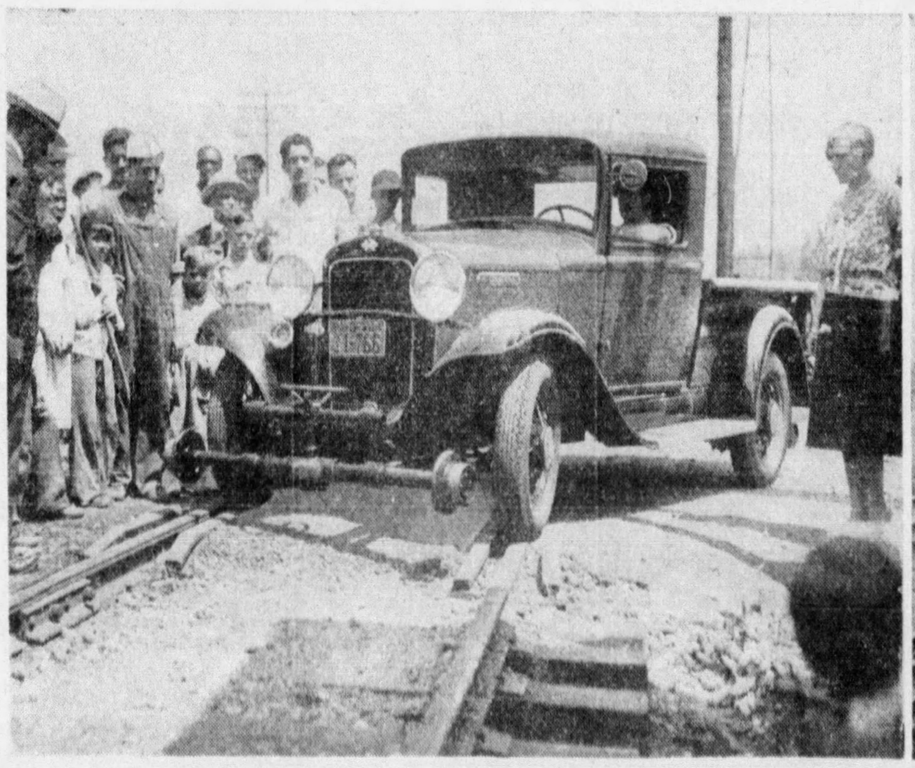
A TRUCK ON THE P. R. R.'S TRACKS—AND PASSING GOOD OLD NO. 3235 AT THAT!



OFFICIALS TESTING THE NEW RAILROAD TRUCK..... DRIVING IT ONTO P. R. R. TRACKS

The new truck—"ambidextrous" in that it runs onroad or rails—as its driver decided at a crossing to take to the rails. He stops for a minute, lowers front and rear flanges that guide it.

And here's the truck, passing a P. R. R. locomotive. The truck runs on its own tires, requires the flanges only to guide it with little friction on the rails. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

CHEAPNESS NOT GOAL IN MENU CONTEST

Among the hundreds of menus that have been submitted in the first week's Prudence Penny $100 weekly cash prize dinner menu contest, it is noted that many have been put together at far below the cost stipulated in the question—some as low as $1 and less.

In asking the readers of the Sun-Telegraph to solve the problem involved in the question, "Can four persons be served with a well-balanced appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50?" it was not the idea of Prudence Penny to ascertain the minimum cost for well-serving four people. More particularly, it was desired to learn how practically and appetizingly four persons can be served at a cost not to exceed the sum in question.

ART OF SHOPPING

It is barely possible that some housewives can really put a menu together for four at much less than $1.50 that would be just as appetizing as a menu from other housewives that costs more closely to this figure. This is where the art of shopping comes in—the woman who furnishes the fine dinner at a lower figure may possibly buy the same foodstuffs employed in a higher priced menu, the difference being reflected in the prices paid for the main items in the dinner.

Some of the dinner menus sent quote ridiculously low prices for a meal for four and it can hardly be expected, conditions considered, that a dinner costing 80 or 90 cents for four persons would compare with a carefully planned dinner at a cost of $1.50. However, there is nothing to stop the housewives from submitting menus to cost far less than the figure in the contest question if they really think that these menus will compare favorably with the higher cost menus that the judges will examine.

WINNERS STUDIED

It is expected that the judges will have completed their work on the first week's contest so that the names of the winners and the winning menus can be published in the Sun-Telegraph next Sunday. Entries for Contest No. 1 must be in the mail before 12 o'clock tonight.

The second week's dinner menu contest—No. 2—is now on. It is based on identically the same question asked in Contest No. 1. All entries for Contest No. 2, however, must be submitted irrespective of any entries in the first week's contest. Menus for the second contest must be in before midnight next Tuesday night.

There is an entry blank and complete rules in today's Sun-Telegraph. If additional blanks are wanted, obtain them free at any one of these leading stores: McCann's, Donahoe's, Kroger's, Triangle, Clover Farm Stores or Butler's. Housewives may submit as many entries as they wish. Bear in mind that there will be weekly cash prizes totalling $100 awarded in this timely contest. The first prize is $25. That's worth going after, isn't it?

AUTOS INJURE FOUR BOYS

William Weinich, 4, of 1144 East Ohio street, suffered lacerations of the leg when struck by an automobile near his home late yesterday. The boy was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

William Dixon, 4, of 7043 Race street, was injured when he was struck by an automobile in Lang avenue, near Hamilton avenue yesterday. The boy was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Struck by an automobile near his home last night, Robert Venturino, 5, of 211 Omega street, suffered a fractured leg. He was taken to Belvedere Hospital.

Arthur Fentiman, 19, of 428 Duquesne way, suffered a laceration on the head when his automobile collided with another in Bigelow boulevard near the Seventeenth Street incline late yesterday. He was a passenger in a car driven by William Klein, 19, of 407 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, police said.

SCHOOL AUDIT DEMANDED

A public audit of Wilkinsburg's school board books was demanded last night by the Wilkinsburg Taxpayers' Association, who expressed dissatisfaction over the 1933-34 tax rate.

The taxpayer's group declared that although the budget has been reduced $150,000, corresponding to four mills in the borough tax rate, the board has failed to pass any of the saving on to the taxpayers.

Dr. A. B. McMurray, board president, told the taxpayers delegation the audit would be started within two weeks.

MICKEY MOUSE RUNS 'LIFT'

Mickey Mouse and Minnie, famous Sun-Telegraph comic strip characters, are elevator passengers in Pittsburgh today.

Of course, it's only a miniature elevator—just about mouse size, but it works just like the big ones in modern apartment buildings.

Part of an elevator company's exhibit at the convention of the Building Owners and Managers Association in the William Penn Hotel this week, it shows the mechanical details of the modern automatic electric elevator.

The model is the work of R. G. Tilton, Cleveland engineer.

In the car, Mickey Mouse is supposed to be at the controls, but control buttons which visitors may operate in front of the exhibit really make the machinery whir.

Madge Bogart, State College 'Prof,' Dies

STATE COLLEGE, June 20.—(AP.)—Miss Madge T. Bogart, 48, professor of home economics at Pennsylvania State College, died yesterday after a long illness.

She had charge of home extension work throughout the state since her connection with the college in 1923.

'Citizens' Party' Name Pre-Empted

Joseph B. Kraus, of 2127 Liberty avenue, and several others, have filed a petition for the purpose of pre-empting the name of "Citizens' Party." It is averred that candidates are to run on that ticket for all city and county offices.

Candidate

RAYMOND D. EVANS

Mr. Evans, assistant U. S. district attorney, who has announced his candidacy for the Common Pleas Court bench.

GIRL WHO TRIED SUICIDE FREED

The young woman alleged to have attempted suicide in the Pennsylvania Railroad Station yesterday, was discharged by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg when arraigned in Night Court on a disorderly conduct charge.

She was arrested after Allegheny General Hospital physicians were unable to find a trace of poison. She had told police she was Esther Launch, 23, of Vestaburg, but at the hearing said she was Stella Kranchec, of Dormont. She said she was despondent over financial difficulties.

JOBLESS YOUTH DIES BY GAS

A youth, unemployed two years, ended his life early today by inhaling gas, according to a morgue report.

The body of Max Chussett, 23, was found, partially clothed, in the bathroom of his home, 614 North St. Clair street, by his mother. Police, who made a futile attempt to restore life, said Chussett inhaled the gas fumes from an open jet after wrapping a blanket over his head.

Chussett attempted to end his life by taking poison a year ago, according to police.

Baby Strangles In Fall from Crib

Wensel Dripps, 6 months old, was found dead last night in his home in Railroad street, Wall, a victim of strangulation, according to the Coroner.

The infant fell from his crib and his head became caught between the crib and his mother's bed, the report stated.

BUHL OFFICIAL ADDRESSES BUILDERS

An address on "The Large Scale Planned Community" by C. F. Lewis, director of the Buhl Foundation, was to be given before the apartment house group of the delegation to the convention of the Building Owners and Managers Association in the Hotel William Penn today.

The regular scheduled program of the main group continued in the Urban Room. The report of the committee on renting will be given by Murray E. Randell, chairman, of Omaha. "Electric Current and Steam Economics" will be the subject of a talk by Walter W. Boyle, of Pittsburgh.

Delegates at yesterday's session heard William E. Malm, president of the association, say:

"If this convention accomplishes nothing more than the granting of executive authority to seek government co-operation in establishing fair rental rates and suppressing unfair competitive practices, it will have made the greatest advance in its history."

Moral pressure, he emphasized, had failed in dealing with the "disturbing minorities" in the building owning and managing industry.

The amendment of the federal bankruptcy law providing that a claim for future rent under existing leases should constitute a provable debt and shall be liquidated under the Bankruptcy Act, he listed as the most important accomplishment of the association during the past year.

COUNTY MAKES TERMS AT NADINE

A settlement has been reached by the county, the Pennsylvania Water Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad which will lead to the completion of the $3,000,000 Allegheny River boulevard in the near future. The agreement on the settlement probably will be signed this week, it was said by Commissioner C. M. Barr and county solicitors.

Although no details of the settlement have been made public, pending signing of final papers, it is understood that the county will have to pay approximately $140,000. Of this amount $100,000 will go to the water company for damages and the remainder for the construction of a conveyor system under the roadway into the plant.

The agreement will give the county a four lane roadway and will eliminate grade crossings. The water company had previously asked $140,000 damages and that the county erect and maintain the conveyor system.

PATTERSON MAY OPPOSE HERRON

safe prediction that Mackrell would go enthusiastically into a fight for the judge. The two are friends, and conceivably Patterson if Mayor would do what he could to assist Mackrell in retaining the Register of Wills office in 1935.

Mackrell would not exhibit the same enthusiasm for any other candidate, and more probably than not will run himself if Patterson does not.

McArdle, though desirous of being a candidate himself, and possessing elements of strength, would, on his record in Council, line up with Patterson. Malone has said, despite his own announcement, that he is willing to sit down with any group or groups and discuss the problem of a united campaign behind the most redoubtable candidate against Herron.

COUNCIL SLATE

Malone and Witherow might appear on a Council slate with Patterson as a Mayoralty candidate. The other elements which would contribute strength to the movement would be represented. And these interests are not to be taken lightly.

Summed up, the pressure on Judge Patterson is continuing. He has not succeeded in convincing those agitating the matter that there are no conditions under which he will run. He has received such pledges as probably would induce any other man discussed to announce his candidacy tomorrow.

Two weeks ago it appeared Judge Patterson would not run. In view of the situation today, and the continuing conferences on the subject, there would be no surprise should his name be on the ballot next September.

JUDGES SPEAK IN BELLEVUE

Two judges addressed community meetings in churches opposite each other on Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, last night.

Speaking on the evils of sweatshops, Judge M. A. Musmanno, of County Court, addressed the North Boroughs Communities Council of the Federation of Associated Charities in the United Presbyterian Church. He also advocated old age pension legislation. He said:

"In our system of American democracy old age pension is just as necessary as hospitals."

Judge Ralph H. Smith, of Common Pleas Court, spoke before the Men's Bible Class at the First Baptist Church on "A Lawyer's View of Christianity."

Man Who Leaped From Bridge Dies

Joseph Nagy, 27, of 307 Patterson avenue, Duquesne, died last night in McKeesport Hospital from a fractured back, suffered when he leaped from the Duquesne Bridge, June 12, according to the Coroner's report. Nagy was said to have been despondent over ill health.

Home Loan Head?

L. C. LICHLITER

SLATE BANKER FOR LOAN POST

Appointment of L. G. Lichliter, Somerset County Democrat, banker and civic leader, as head of the Pittsburgh branch of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation is expected before July 1.

W. F. Stevenson, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board which is setting up the corporation, today in Washington said she hoped the manager would be selected and acting before July 1. He said it was probable Philadelphia would be chosen headquarters for Pennsylvania with branches at Harrisburg and Pittsburgh.

Lichliter taught history and had charge of athletics at Boswell High and for seven years was cashier of the Peoples State Bank at Jennerstown. He is a director of the Jenners Fair Association, superintendent of the Jennerstown Lutheran Sunday School, district chairman of the Boy Scouts and secretary-treasurer of the Somerset County Bankers' Association.

LANG AWARDS STREET JOBS

Contract prices ranging from 60 to 70 per cent of the estimated cost ruled on nine street and sewer construction jobs which have been awarded by City Public Works Director Edward G. Lang at a total cost of $45,039.

The widening of Fifth avenue from Bigelow boulevard to South Dithridge street went to the M. O'Herron Company on a bid of $14,178; paving Colby street from Mt. Pleasant road to Ames street, M. O'Herron Company, $7,674; paving Connor sreet from Winterburn street to Lydia street, M. O'Herron Company, $4,203; and repaving Saline streeet west of Four Mile Run road, M. O'Herron Company, $9,957.

Other jobs were smaller paving and sewer projects.

CITY SETS NEW SAFETY MARK

Pittsburgh is on its way toward the capture of another "Safest City" record, according to the Better Traffic Committee. Records show that only four fatal accidents occurred in May—an all time low. Last year, the month saw 11 deaths. The five months so far in 1933 likewise show the fewest fatalties in any similar period in the decade.

The only blot shows an increase in child deaths for the five-month period, nine being recorded this year and seven last.

5 OPEN HEARTH FURNACES RESUME

The Pittsburgh district's steel mills are now operating 36 per cent of ingot capacity, an increase of one point over last week, it was learned today. Five additional open hearths resumed operation today, bringing the number up to 79.

The first of McKeesport's blast furnaces, idle for many months, was blown in yesterday at the National Tube Company's plant. Mayor George H. Lysle officiated at the ceremony.

About 4,000 employes have been recalled. Scores are already at work and the remainder will be recalled shortly, officials said.

The Carnegie Steel Company announced that clerical help, furloughed from two to nine days a month, would be recalled on full time following receipt of an order for 7,500 tons of rails from the Norfolk and Western Railway. The remainder of the 10,000-ton order went to the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which also got an order for 120,000 tie-plates from Seaboard Air Line.

Hymns to Replace 'I Love You' Songs At Weddings

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP.)—The possible end of "I Love You" songs at weddings was hailed yesterday by Presbyterian ministers.

Special wedding hymns have been introduced in the new Presbyterian hymnal. The innovation was explained before the Presbyterian Ministerial Association by Dr. Charles R. Erdman, of Princeton, one of the compilers, and Dr. William C. Covert, secretary of the Christian Board of Education.

Dr. Karl Wettstone, lauding the announcement, said:

"At last we have something to sing at weddings. I have become weary of hearing nothing but 'I Love You.' Last week I performed six marriages, and it was the same at every one of them."

SPHERES REDUCED BUT STILL BIG ITEM

THOUGH THE LESS lively ball in use in the major leagues this year has resulted in a saving to the club owners, inasmuch as fewer are knocked out of the lot and games can be played with a smaller number than formerly, the spheres still represent a greater item of expense to the magnates than the average fan realizes. Asked for some local figures on the subject before he departed last night to attend the National League meeting in New York, President W. E. Benswanger admitted that not so many baseballs are required for a game as in former seasons. The number used to run as high as 30 or more. Some of the games at Forbes Field this season have been played with 16 or 17. It is estimated that the average per game here for 1933 will be about 25.

W. E. Benswanger

That spells a lot of money. The home club supplies the balls for each game, and they cost the team owners $14.70 per dozen, so that for every ball knocked out of the lot by a batter or grabbed by a spectator the club is out $1.22½. An average of 25 per game means 1,925 for the home season of 77 contests, or a cost of $2,357.

And that's only part of it. The training trip and morning and afternoon practice must be counted in. Last year the National League used 4,340 dozen balls, costing $63,798, and the American used 4,480 dozen, costing $65,856. That means a total of 105,840 baseballs in the two leagues in one year at an expense of $129,654. In actual championship play, the A's used the greatest number of balls, a total of 2,721 for the regular season, or an average of 35 per game. The Yankees were second with 2,586. The number used will be lower all around this year, but still high enough to represent a staggering outlay. Running a big league ball club is no piker's game.

AFTER LONG EXPERIENCE with the subject in Detroit, Harry Salsinger expresses the opinion that there will be disagreements between ball players and scorers always as to what constitutes a hit and an error, and that there will be similar disagreements between batters and pitchers. It isn't the mere hit in the case alone that causes a hurler to complain when a safety is given on what he thinks should be scored as an error. The real kick is that it may affect his earned-run average, and it's the latter that determines his ranking.

As showing how this may work out, it is related that one scorer failed to charge a first baseman with an error when he muffed an easy foul fly for what should have been the third out. Seven runs followed, and they were recorded as earned runs against the pitcher, whereas if the muff had been called an error it would have meant that the side should have been retired before the rally, the seven runs would have been unearned, and the pitcher would not have been blamed in the records.

ANOTHER DISAGREEMENT SHOWS Guy Bush, of the Cubs, still insisting that he pitched a no-hit game against the Cards in 1931. The only hit charged against him was a sharp grounder that George Watkins batted to Woody English. Woody fumbled it, and the scorer gave Watkins a hit on the ground that the drive was too hard to handle. Bush asserts it should have been called an error.

Wesley Ferrell, of the Indians, was credited with pitching a no-hit game against the Browns in Cleveland on April 29, 1931, but the St. Louis players still contend that two fielding chances which were scored as errors should have been marked down as hits, and that all Ferrell did was to pitch a two-hit game.

NATURAL ABILITY ISN'T the only thing that makes Ben Chapman a great ball player. It's his spirit that makes it count. He spends his ability freely in the service of the Yankees. He's never under wraps, and any time he steps on a ball field he's all ribbed up and ready to go. In fact, the only outstanding fault that Chapman has, according to Frank Graham, is a propensity to go too far on occasion. Often he is seen being thrown out trying to stretch a single into a double, a double into a triple, or a triple into a home run. But he'll never be shot for moping.

Ben Chapman

CHAPMAN TRAINS TO play ball that way. He makes no allowance for loafing time between the middle of April and the first of October. He comes up for the opening of the season hard as nails, and full of vim and vigor, and he stays that way all summer long.

"Chapman is one of the few ball players I've ever known to be in real condition always," says Joe McCarthy. "A lot of players, supposed to be fit, can't run around the bases without blowing up. Chappie can circle the bags and come into the dugout without drawing a long breath. Earl Combs is like that, and so is Hazen Cuyler, but I can't think of any others."

AFTER A FINE start, Harry Heilmann was held hitless in his second game as a member of the Tool Shop club, in the professional division of the Detroit Baseball Federation, and now he declares it's a tough league for hitters. Mike Menosky, of the old Pittsburgh Federal League club; Bobby Veach and Johnny Mitchell are other former big leaguers who agree with him.

The league plays only on Sundays, and Veach says no player, no matter how good he is, can keep his batting eye sharp playing only one game a week.

IT IS POINTED out by a veteran critic that the dreadnaught class in boxing, which has been set aside for the Sharkey-Carnera match, is confusing. The minimum height is 6 feet 2 inches and the minimum weight is 220 pounds. Now, there are boxers around 5 feet 11 inches weighing more than 220. There are others more than 6 feet 2 inches tall weighing less than 220. How will they be classed? It appears that there may be fighters with no place to go. Had the dreadnaught class been in existence in the old days, it is argued, some of our greatest fighters would have been robbed of several of their biggest victims, and the well-known line, "the bigger they are the harder they fall," probably never would have been used.

JOHNNY GOODMAN says the form that made him national open champion in 1933 dates back to the memorable occasion in 1929 when he defeated Bobby Jones in the national amateur at Pebble Beach. For he won the open because he putted better than any other entrant, and he learned about putting from Jones.

"I didn't know how to putt until after playing against Jones," Goodman remarks. "I had a hitch in my putting stroke. I noticed that Jones had a perfect follow-through to a perfectly smooth stroke. Immediately I began to practice putting like Bobby, and I think I putted like him in this year's open."

FOOTBALL HAS STARTED a lot of college players in various vocations. In the case of Eddie Hirshberg, of McKeesport Pitt's inspiring grid captain of 1931 it cost the ranks of rising young journalists one promising writer and added a possible future expert to the field of political science.

For Hirshberg, now assistant to Spike Harding, another former Panther gridder, as football coach at St. Thomas College in Scranton, incidentally has become professor of political science and American government at the same school.

Eddie Hirshberg

WHEN HE TOOK the job at St. Thomas Eddie discovered he had been the fortunate candidate because he was qualified to teach political science, though he had not majored in that subject at Pitt, preferring to center his studies on English literature and journalism. However, being well read and possessing the proper credits, Hirshberg started in teaching, and now he admits he likes it so well that he means to go through with it. The former Panther captain says he has found that teaching the subject is far more interesting than hearing it taught, and he has practically adopted it as his life's work. In the opinion of his Pitt friends, Hirshberg's personality should carry him far in the lecture hall, for the 1931 Panther eleven, which he led, was noted for the exceptional harmony and team spirit that prevailed.

Lead Local Qualifiers for National Public Links Tourney to Be Played on Coast

FRANCIS LALLY — TOM BARR — MARTY BOSCHERT — JEROME ROSENBERG — JOHN PASIKOWSKI — ANDY SZWEDKA

Six low scorers in the 36-hole qualifying round for the National Public Links tournament, staged over the Schenley Park course. Lally seored a 131 to lead the field. Barr shot a 133, Boschert, Rosenberg and Pasikowski 134 each and Szwedka a 135. The national tournament will be played at Portland, Ore., in August. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

LALLY LEADS PUBLIC LINKS QUALIFIERS

J. Francis Lally, who, over a period of years, consistently has won himself a place on local public links teams, paced a classy field of contestants in the 36-hole qualifying round for the national public links tourney over Schenley Park course yesterday.

Lally shot a 63-68—131, two shots better than Tom Barr, who had a 65-68—133. Marty Boschert, John Paskowski and Jerome Rosenberg tied for third place with 134 each.

Carl Kaufmann, three times national champion, finished with a 136. Carl was not hitting his tee shots and was putting poorly on the morning round and consumed 70 shots before picking up his ball from the eighteenth cup. He matched par with a 66 in the afternoon.

If a six-men team is considered, Andy Szwedka will be in the limelight. He shot a 135.

Niblick Shots

When the men's team matches roll around, the Highland Country Club team, defending champion, will be playing without the services of Knox Young, Jr. It is reported that Knox has transferred his affiliations to Shannopin, and will play with the Chieftains this year.

Pete O'Hara, the Westmoreland wizard, has found his game. He shot a 89 Sunday afternoon, with a hole in 1 on the 213-yard sixteenth hole at Westmoreland.

George Flinn, Jr., who went to the finals of the State Amateur last year, and who will be president of the state body next year, leaves soon on an extensive trip to Alaska.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A(R)RESTFUL ISLAND—Devil's Island, one of the three islands belonging to French Guiana, off the north coast of South America, is a pleasant enough place. It has only six political prisoners at present, who are housed in individual two-room cottages and have complete freedom to wander about in the daytime. Their food is the same as that allotted to the soldiers, and their life in the dense groves of palm trees overgrowing their place of exile presents no particular hardships except that of terrible monotony. It is the other two islands, St. Joseph and Ile Royale, which live up to the terrible reputation of French Guiana, known as the Dry Guillotine. Devil's Island became notorious through the sojourn there of innocent Capt. Dreyfus for five years. THE DEAN OF "DIABLE"—Laporte, nicknamed d'Artagnan, is now 70 years old, 50 of which he has spent as a convict in French Guiana. He escaped twice from New Caledonia, and then eight times from French Guiana. Seven times he was returned to prison by the Dutch, British and Venezuelan authorities. For his first two "evasions" he received additional punishment of 80 years. For his subsequent escapes he was sentenced to additional terms, so that today, after serving 50 years, he still has 150 years more to serve. In his youth, he made good an escape to Australia, only to be returned to prison after he could not resist the temptation to see his native Bordeaux again. The picture is from a photo taken in Bordeaux 30 years ago.

TOMORROW—THE LIVING SAILS OF DUTCH AMERICA.

American Leaguers To Be Home Team

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP.)—The American League cast will be the "home team" at Comiskey Park July 6 in baseball's biggest game.

When a flip of a coin gave the game, between stars of the two major leagues, to the American League park two weeks ago, President William Harridge, of the American League, figured that all the regular privileges—batting last—went with it. President John A. Heydler, of the National League, had a different idea, however, and another coin flipping was held last night, with the American League again winning.

The vote, to date, on National League stars, follows:

First base—Terry, New York, 151,241; Bottomley, Cincinnati, 49,839.
Second base—Frisch, St. Louis, 164,357; Herman, Chicago, 34,937.
Third base—Traynor, Pittsburgh, 179,427; Marin, St. Louis, 38,853.
Shortstop—Bartell, Philadelphia, 139,593; Vaughan, Pittsburgh, 75,324.
Outfield—Klein, Philadelphia, 190,978; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, 139,558; O'Doul, New York, 125,559.
Catchers—Hartnett, Chicago, 188,114; J. Wilson, St. Louis, 68,291.
Pitchers—Hubbell, New York, 167,963; Warneke, Chicago, 162,882; Lucas, Cincinnati, 72,164.

U. S. Chess Team Ties With Danes

FOLKESTONE, England, June 20.—(AP.)—The United States team was pitted against Denmark in the tenth round of the international chess tournament and drew three of the four games to tie at 1½-1½, with one adjourned.

Following the two regular sessions of play set apart for the ninth and tenth rounds, a period was devoted to playing off adjourned games. I. Kashdan and F. J. Marshall, of the United States, both reached draws against Austrian opponents.

Poland moved up into second place below the United States, Czechoslovakia and Sweden coming next in order.

WRESTLING RESULTS

At Montreal—Jim Browning, 230, defeated Joe Malcewicz, 202, two out of three falls.

At Camden, N. J.—Ray Steele, 205, defeated Fred Grumbler, 200, two out of three falls; Ernie Dusek, 200, and Dick Raines, 201, drew, 30 minutes.

At New York—Joe Savoldi, 205, threw Jack Washburn, 200; Len Macaluso, 210, threw Jack Russell, 215.

BUCS RESUME SERIES WITH BRAVES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The ensuing two weeks of intersectional baseball strife, ending with the arrival of Independence Day, is likely to be heavy with pennant significance in both the National and American leagues. Inasmuch as there are three Western entries in the middle of the senior league flag jam, the present invasion of the Seaboard cities is fraught with especial import.

The big question among National League players and fans at present is:

"Will the Giants continue to set the pace or will they fold up to conform with many of the pre-season predictions?"

"Many" is used advisedly in connection with the Giants and the prophets. Members of the Pirates entourage to California were not among those who relegated the New Yorkers to the second division, and it was for a very good reason that the Pittsburgh tourists failed to snub Memphis Bill and his boys.

GIANTS FULL OF FIGHT

The Buccaneers did not "look so good" in California while the rejuvenated Giants, after recovering from the earthquake shocks, fought their way to three victories over the favored Buccos. On paper they did not appear nearly as formidable as the Corsairs, but on the field they were fighting fools—and you must win the games on the battlefields to have them count.

Pittsburgh baseball patrons had just one chance to see the new Giants in action this year, but in that one opportunity they saw plenty. The Pirates made enough runs to win an ordinary ball game, but the scrappy New Yorkers fought their way to the front after Blondy Ryan had made one of the most sensational catches in many seasons on a fiery liner off Arky Vaughan's bat with the bases jammed.

CRONIN IN LIMELIGHT

With the Cardinals, the Pirates and the Cubs on their hands in the next fortnight, the Giants will be afforded an opportunity to crack. Provided they weather the approaching storm there is no telling how far they may go in the big chase. Their treatment of the Cubs in the past two days doesn't indicate they are slipping.

Joe Cronin's countless friends in Pittsburgh are receiving a big thrill out of the doings of Joe's Senators of the American League. Cronin's fine leadership has brought his club to within one-half a game of the Yankees.

Hibernian Games Begin in Morning

The large number of entries in the track and field events to be staged at the annual Hibernians' picnic in Kennywood Park Saturday has made it necessary for the committee to move the starting time from 12:30 to 10 o'clock in the morning.

Judge Ralph Smith has donated the trophy which will be awarded to the parochial school represented by the winning team. President Bill Benswanger, of the Pirates, has provided two autographed baseballs for the 7-to12-year-old boys who come out first in the novelty races. Bathing suits and other prizes will be given.

The Duquesne University band will lead the procession previous to the hurling game between Cork and Kilkenny at 3:50. The Mayor, members of City Council, judges and other notables will participate in the parade.

SEEDED NETTERS WIN

DOUBLES PLAY ON TODAY IN W. PA. EVENT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Men's doubles competition monopolizes today's card of contesting in the forty-fifth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships in progress since Saturday on the clay courts of the Stanton Heights Golf Club. Inauguration of dual festivities was slated for this afternoon with 36 teams gracing the list. Tournament Chairman Frank Smith has announced that, in view of the excellent pace made to date by the masculine singles event and because of the size of the doubles roster, fourth round man-to-man matches will be held over until tomorrow.

O'LOUGHLINS FIRST

Dr. John and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. aces who are competing as a West Penn brother act for the first time since 1926, have been rated atop a seeded group of four outfits. Second comes the coalition of Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman, Westmoreland County premiers and captors of the 1932 Fox Chapel invitation event.

Charley Lockhart and McCook Reed rank third of the chosen quartet, with LeRoy Wier and Leonard Keith, Cleveland contenders, fourth. The combination of B. F. Arkle and Bill Thompson was left unseeded due to uncertainty as to whether or not Arkle will be able to play.

The blond West Virginian relinquished his hold on the McCahill Cup, symbolic of men's singles honors, by defaulting to Ronald Neal, of Wilkinsburg, yesterday. The strain of jousting in the West Virginia state tourney at Charleston the past week-end proved too much for Arkle's back, injured in tilt at the Greensburg Country Club nearly a year ago.

Twenty-three engagements, including Arkle's withdrawal, were accounted for on the Heights yesterday, the original field of 101 contestants being now reduced to an even 16, among whom are all of the dozen seeded favorites, except the ailing champion.

HASELTINE WINS

Bill Haseltine, West Penn victor in 1930 and 1931, breezed through George Johnstone, late of Allegheny College, 6-3, 6-1, but the former champion's brother Ben was less fortunate and succumbed before the attack of Paul Barber.

Entries in women's singles and doubles will close at 6 o'clock this evening. Names may be handed in at the committee stand at Stanton Heights or may be given by 'phone at Emerson 9219. The summary:

Lou Gehrig to Wed

YANKEES' STAR AND HIS CHICAGO FIANCEE

The visit of the New York Yankees to Chicago brought to light a romance in the life of Lou Gehrig, fence-busting first baseman of the New York Yankees. He's seen above in an International News Photograph Service picture with his fiancee, Miss Eleanor Twitchell. They're to be married at the end of the baseball season.

STAR TO PLAY ALL POSITIONS

Emulating the stunt pulled some years ago by Long George Kelly, then with the New York Giants, of playing every position in a regular game, Oscar Charleston, veteran star of the Pittsburgh Crawfords, will handle every assignment for the Crawfords Thursday night as they take on Jim Thorpe's touring Indians at Greenlee Field.

Charleston, rated as one of the greatest players in baseball, has been holding down the first base job for the Crawfords this year, but Thursday he'll spend an inning at every position. The game is to be played under the lights and will be called at 9 o'clock.

In this evening's City League tussle, the Dormont and J. L. Thomas nines will hook up at Dean Field.

In last night's frays, the Books walloped the Gillespies, 12 to 2, and Dormont beat Homewood, 7 to 5.

Josh Gibson's home run with the bases jammed in the second inning started the Crawfords off to what eventually turned out to be a lopsided victory over the Detroit Stars in a Negro National League game last night under the lights. The Detroit board of strategy walked Charleston with two out to get at Gibson, but with the count three and two, the husky Crawford receiver slammed the ball to deep center. The Crawfords won, 25 to 2.

WESTINGHOUSE EVENS SERIES

The annual playoff series for the City League scholastic baseball championship stands at one game apiece for the Westinghouse and South Hills nines.

Westinghouse evened the series yesterday, beating the Tunnelites in the second game, 12 to 7. Leading 7 to 2 in the fifth, South Hills blew up, Westinghouse tallied seven runs and won the ball game. Thirteen errors contributed heavily to South Hills' downfall.

The third and deciding contest will be staged Thursday afternoon at Peabody's field.

Brookline won the city grade school title yesterday, downing Forbes, 9 to 1, in the final game of the championship tournament. Brenneman limited Fodbes to five scattered hits.

Babe Ruth Victim Of 'Gas' Attack

CHICAGO, June 20.—(INS.)—During his long and turbulent career, Babe Ruth has been sent to his bed with a variety of ailments, but it remained for a new one to put him down yesterday.

It was disclosed that Ruth was the main victim of sewer gas escaping in the Yankee dugout during the doubleheader Sunday at Comiskey Park. Ruth complained of stomach pains and departed from the second game after singling in the first inning.

Manager Joe McCarthy, Lou Gehrig, Ben Chapman and Joe Sewell were others who complained of the gas, but all were in uniform yesterday.

WHY NOT BUY the tire which has EVERYTHING!

IT COSTS NO MORE!

YOU hear a lot about safety in tire advertising these days. Safety from skidding. Safety from blowouts. If you want that safety, there's just one sure way to get it, and that is BUY GOODYEAR TIRES. Here's why—

Safety from skidding

There's only one thing that can keep you from skidding—and that is a tread that has grip where the tire contacts the road—traction in the center of the tread, where Goodyear puts it. Goodyear Tires—the All-Weather and the Pathfinder—skid less than any other tire. Careful tests on wet pavements prove it. They show that the next best tire to a Goodyear skids 10% farther—and many tires skid 77% farther than Goodyears!

Safety from blowouts

Blowouts are caused by the body of the tire breaking down. Goodyear Tires give you blow-out protection not merely in one ply or two but in every ply—from bead to bead. That's because Goodyears are built with the patented ply material, Supertwist—which will stretch and come back long after ordinary cords break down under the strain of heat and speed. That means a longer lasting, cooler running, safer tire.

Mileage increased 97% in five years

Bus operators don't guess about mileage. Their records show the facts. And more buses are equipped with Goodyear Tires than any other kind. Their records show that Goodyears now average mileages which represent an increase of 97% in the past five years.

Prices are down—buy now

Everyone knows prices are rising. Statistics show that commodity prices already have risen 50 to 100%. But tire prices are still down. If you want to see how much you save—look at these actual figures.

TALK is cheap—but talk won't keep you out of accidents. If you're looking for SAFETY—buy the tire that delivers so much more safety that this is the eighteenth consecutive year in which it has been the world's largest-selling tire. You can trust the public's judgment—Goodyear Tires are the greatest values your money can buy.

U. S. GOLFERS WIN, LOSE IN BRITISH AMATEUR

GEORGE DUNLAP IS PRAISED BY RIVAL

BULLETIN.

HOYLAKE, England, June 20. (AP.)—George Dunlap, Jr., leading American entrant in the British amateur golf tournament, continued his victorious march with a 3-and-2 victory over A. W. Whyte, of Western Gailes in the third round today.

HOYLAKE, England, June 20.—(AP.)—Cyril Tolley, giant Englishman, who has made his home in the United States several years, opened his bid for the British amateur golf championship today by eliminating R. H. Oppenheimer, of the Royal and Ancient Club, 3 and 2, in a second-round match.

Tolley, who won the title in 1920 and 1929, drew a first-round bye.

The stock of George Dunlap, Jr., New York, former United States intercollegiate champion, continued strong as the Irishman Joseph Gorry, told friends about his losing match with the youthful American yesterday. He said:

"I did four holes in fours in the middle of the match, but lost them all. After that there wasn't any hope."

Dunlap beat the Irishman 4 and 3 to gain a place in the third round.

NEW YORKER BEATEN

Charles Sweeny, one of the American brothers, who are students at Oxford, defeated J. S. Rowell, 4 and 3, in a second-round encounter.

William Mandel, New York acrobatic comedian, wasn't agile enough to keep out of the bunkers and lost to R. Thairwall in his first match, 2 and 1.

Douglas Grant, American living in London, advanced to the third round with a 2-and-1 victory over C. P. Johnstone, of the Royal Calcutta.

One of the Canadian contingent, Paul Sampson, of Gananoque, Ont., was eliminated in the second round by T. C. J. Manners, of Colwyn Bay, 4 and 3.

CANADIAN ADVANCES

Brig. Gen. A. P. C. Critchley, native Canadian, who won the French amateur title a few days ago, won his second round match from Rex Crummack, of St. Andrews, 4 and 3.

J. M. Burns, another of the Canadian entrants, was put out of the second round by F. McGloin, of West Kint, 5 and 4. Burns is from Lookout Point.

C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, Canadian holder of the United States amateur golf title, advanced to the fourth round with a crushing 8-and-7 victory over W. H. Sharpe, of Dunbar.

The Canadian delegation was reduced to two—Somerville and Jack Nash—as Lewis Ybarri, a Spaniard, defeated Don Anderson, of St. Thomas, Ont., 3 and 2, in a second round encounter.

Robert Sweeny, brother of Charles, advanced through the third round as F. C. Harrison scratched his entry.

St. Louis to Keep Cardinal Franchise

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—(AP.)—Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, characterized as a "complete fabrication" a Montreal report that plans are under way to transfer the St. Louis National League franchise there. He said:

"The yarn is not even worth a denial. The Cardinals are busy right now bringing a championship pennant to St. Louis. We don't propose to take it anywhere else."

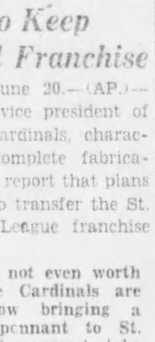
Pirates' Chief At League Session

President William Benswanger, of the Pirates, is in New York today attending a meeting of the National League clubowners at which many matters of importance are being discussed.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—I see Van Mungo and Lefty Gomez had their fast balls measured with a lightning machine and Lefty's cleaves the atmosphere at 111 feet a second. But neither lad can hold a candle to Walter Johnson's old smoke ball. They clocked that at 122 feet a second back in 1912 and I will say that is speed. If Sir Malcolm Campbell ever drove his Bluebird alongside Walter's swift one he would look like the engineer of a slow freight.



Nick Altrock

I've faced Barney's delivery plenty of times in practice and it was just like trying to hit one of those little liver pills. You had as much chance braining a gnat with a baseball bat as you did slamming a hit off the Big Train.

But Gomez's fast one isn't anything to bump your skull into, either. Instead of being born with a silver spoon in his mouth, I maintain Gomez was born with a Gatling gun for his left arm.

The most loudly booed decision in many moons at a local arena climaxed a long-drawn-out and, with one exception, uninteresting card of bouts at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night, as Baby Joe Gans, of New York, washed-up former Negro menace in the welterweight class, received a gift award over Jack Portney, Baltimore southpaw, at the end of the 10-round main bout.

Portney was so far ahead of the shadow of a once great fighter at the final bell that it was taken for granted by the fans that the announcing of the decision was a mere formality. When they heard Gans declared the victor they were stunned for a moment and then burst out into a chorus of booing that left no doubt about their feelings in the matter.

Only one of the three officials called his shot properly, Mike Moran, one of the judges. The other judge, Freddie Lux, and the referee, Al Grayber, voted for Gans.

WARNED BY REFEREE

Gans had an edge of 9½ pounds when they weighed in during the afternoon, at 145½ against 136, and fought a miserable bout. For the first four rounds he scarcely led a punch and was on the receiving end of everything Portney threw. Then the referee went to his corner and ordered him to open up and fight, and he began to throw right hand uppercuts. With these he won the fifth and seventh rounds by slight margins, but all of the others went to Portney, who outscored him while circling about the ring, blocking many of Gans' loaded rights. In the seventh round he cut Gans' left eye, drawing blood, and, in the final round, he shook him three times with swinging lefts to the head.

The 10-round semi-final was the life-saver of the show. In it, Lew Raymond, of Baltimore, stablemate of Portney, received the judges' decision over Billy Holt, local Negro, with the referee voting a draw. It was one of the toughest and fastest battles any fan would want to see from bell to bell in every round and almost a dead heat. Raymond did most of the forcing, with Holt the deadlier hitter. They were slugging away at close quarters much of the time. Like Portney, Raymond gave away considerable weight, scaling 140 pounds against 145¾.

BUTCH OFF FORM

Mose Butch, Oakland featherweight, put up a fine off-form exhibition against Dandy Allen, Hill Negro, in the first 10-rounder and the bout was a messy affair that went the limit after Allen had been floored for nine in the fifth round. Mose got the decision, but Allen came away with the glory.

Don Asto, of Uniontown, came from behind to win the six-round opener against Johnny Durso, local lightweight.

Between Rounds

Tony Canzoneri will be making his fifth defense of the world lightweight title when he meets Barney Ross in the Chicago stadium Friday night. He won the crown from Al Singer in November, 1930, and defeated it twice against Jack (Kid) Berg and once each against Kid Chocolate and Billy Petrolle.

The Tommy Loughran-Steve Hamas fight at the Yankee Stadium, New York, tomorrow night, will mark their fourth meeting. Hamas won one bout on a knockout and another on a decision, losing the decision in the other one.

Babe Marino, California sensation, has quit the welterweight class and will meet Gorilla Jones in a 10-round bout as a middleweight in Los Angeles, June 30.

Harry Jacoby, who won his first two starts here by technical knockouts, will figure in a 10-round battle in his next start, at Hickey Park, next Monday night.

Tuz Phillips can't get any of the welterweights to tangle with him, so he is ready to meet anybody up to 155 pounds, according to his manager, Al Shuttle.

Baby Casanova, Mexican star, boxes Young Tommy at Los Angeles, July 11.

The Twenty-seventh Ward Republican Club stages its first amateur show of the outdoor season in its outdoor arena, California avenue, tonight, when women with escorts will be admitted free. The card: Matt Oznak vs. Ray Hatton, John Burkholder vs. Gigi Carabo, Billy Marsh vs. Tony De Sanders, Joe Thomason vs. Young Cowboy De Luca, Regis Golden vs. Teddy Movan, Cliff Armstrong vs. Steve Proznak and Bum Sandusky vs. Eddie Schaeffer.

Billy Petrolle and Bep Van Klavern box at the Yankee Stadium, New York, July 12.

A middleweight title bout between Ben Jeby and Young Terry at Newark, N. J., has been postponed from last night to July 10.

Adolph Heuser, of Germany, boxes Abe Feldman in the eight-round semi-final to the Tommy Loughran-Steve Hamas fourth meeting at the Yankee Stadium, New York, tomorrow night. Five four-round preliminaries are scheduled and the prices range from $1 to $3.

Carey to Quit Garden Broke, Needing Job

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Eleven days hence, a man by the name of William F. Carey is going to walk out of Madison Square Garden and is not coming back—granting that the Garden will feel free when the time comes to accept the implied rebuke. They say he's an honest man and this must be so, because when he became president and general manager after Tex Rickard's death he was a millionaire, living at the rate of $200,000 a year. Today he's broke.

These, briefly stated, are the essential facts of an amazing story. It is amazing because it deals so largely with self-sacrifice and loyalty and high courage in an age where only the Philistine is understood. The man abandoned all other interests and gave four years of his life to the job. From a practical standpoint, I suppose the job was reasonable. All it took in return was everything. It's finished with him now.

DID A GOOD JOB

Here is what Carey did for Madison Square Garden:

1—Reduced the mortgage from $2,700,000 to $1,250,000.

2—Built a 70,000 outdoor bowl and paid for it out of its own receipts in less than a year.

3—Built up a cash reserve between $500,000 and $600,000. There wasn't the change out of a quarter in the cash reserve when Carey took charge.

4—Kept the arena going full-time and on a profitable basis when all others folded, buckled and subsided, some of them never to rise again.

HERE'S HIS REGARD

And, meantime, this is what Madison Square Garden did to him:

1—Appointed James J. Johnston as general manager of boxing and forgot to notify the president.

2—Reduced his salary.

3—Complained bitterly about his policies, even while accepting the money they produced.

4—Appointed John Kilpatrick, Yale's great end of another generation, as vice president and forgot to notify the president.

Now Carey is leaving the Garden broke, in spite of a few delusions to the contrary, he isn't going anywhere. He will have no connection, as alleged, with the moving pictures. He will make no attempt to tie in with Wall Street. He won't even have a job.

SPORT SHORTS

CHICAGO—(AP.)—Frank Parker, of Milwaukee, the defending champion, easily won his opening match in the singles of the Western tennis championships, smothering Dave Meithorpe, River Forest, Ill., 6-0, 6-0.

ST. HELENA, Cal.—(AP.)—In an attempt to show his family some tricks of the boxing trade, Michael F. Maher, 52, one time well-known lightweight fighter, was killed accidentally yesterday. Sparring with his son-in-law, Louis Santa Maria, 27, Maher slipped, striking his head on the edge of a table and fracturing his skull. He died a few moments later.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP.)—Max R. Marston, veteran Philadelphia star, yesterday topped a field of more than 100 starters to win the medal in the qualifying round in the Lynnewood Hall Cup championship golf tournament. His card read 72-71—143.

SENIORS HOLD GOLF TOURNEY AT OAKMONT

By TOM BIRKS

Robert Smith, of the Greensburg Country Club, started out this morning to defend his West Penn senior title over the Oakmont layout, with one of the most formidable fields that ever competed in the tourney out to contest every inch of the way for the crown he has worn since 1931.

Battle-scarred veterans who have figured successfully in many tough battles on the links, including Richard Long, George Ormiston, Dr. George T. Gregg, Jim Crookston, Tom Jamison and Ed McCoy, are included in the field.

WINS IN PLAYOFF

When the 18-hole medal-play tourney was completed last year, Smith, C. W. Jones and Dr. Gregg were tied, all having 82s. The popular barrister from Greensburg came through in the playoff the next day to retain the title.

Plenty of action was on tap in the women's team matches yesterday. Oakmont, without the services of Mrs. S. F. Wadsworth, barely defeated Fox Chapel, 5 to 3, on the Fox Chapel course. Butler found little difficulty defeating Stanton Heights, 6 to 3.

Westmoreland flashed some of the form that carried it to the sectional championship last season in the match against Edgewood. Mrs. Louis Friedman shot brilliant golf and Pete O'Hara's proteges won, 6 to 3.

Allegheny and the Pittsburgh Field club put on a real fight, Mrs. J. Bernd Rose, the Allegheny captain, was missing, and Nancy Byers went into the number one pair. The combination of Mrs. Brown and Miss Byers ran into some great golf from Mary Kuhn, who shot an 82, but Allegheny triumphed, 4 to 3, when Bertha Brooks, teaming with Laura Childs, brought home two points.

ST. CLAIR WINNER

Section II played at South Hills. St. Clair swamped Highland, 9 to 0. Shannopin stopped Youghiogheny, 5 to 3, and Longue Vue blanked the Country Club, 4 to 0.

Joe Connors, Chartiers Heights caddie-master, with a 36-36-72, won the semi-monthly tournament of the Assistant Professionals' and Caddie-Masters' Association at the Churchill Valley course yesterday. Andy Brennigan, of the home club, had a 73.

The kicker's handicap was won by Frank Bruno, of Nemacolin.

Percy Fried, playing at Wildwood yesterday, scored a hole-in-one on the 170-yard No. 11. He was playing in a foursome composed of H. E. LeSecre, S. D. Myers and George Seavey.

FIFTH SHUTOUT IS HURLED BY SCHUMACHER

Associated Press.

Baseball experts called him a "second Christy Mathewson" a couple of years ago but Hal Schumacher, 21-year-old right hander of the New York Giants is just beginning to justify what appeared then to be an extravagant comparison.

Lack of control handicapped the youngster last season, much to the embarrassment of those who had likened him to the immortal "Matty," but Schumacher has hit his stride now and is contributing more than his share to the pitching strength that is keeping the Giants on top the National League standing.

Hal pitched his fifth shutout yesterday, limiting the Chicago Cubs to three hits to win 3-0. Lefty O'Doul paced a seven-hit Giant attack on Charley Root that produced one run in the first inning and two in the eighth.

Meanwhile, the St. Louis Cardinals lost ground in their fight to overhaul the Giants, dropping a 6-5 decision to the Brooklyn Dodgers in the ninth when Johnny Frederick singled Jimmy Jordan home from second with the winning run.

Chuck Klein hit his twelfth homer as the Phillies ended a five-game losing streak and downed the Cincinnati Reds, 8-7.

The New York Yankees' lead in the American League was cut to a half game as the World Champions bowed to the Chicago Whitesox, 4-3 while Washington was romping over the St. Louis Browns, 10-4.

Detroit thumped Lefty Grove for nine hits and six runs in six innings, beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 9-4, and gained a tie with the A's for fifth place.

PROFIT-TAKING CHECKS STOCK ADVANCE

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—The stock market drove forward at a fast pace today as the dollar dropped to record low levels in foreign exchange markets, but a huge volume of profit-taking tended to hold the price advance to a relatively moderate proportion. Dullness accompanied reactionary periods.

Feverish trading put the ticker tape a quarter hour behind floor transactions during most of the forenoon and gains of 1 to 2 or more points were recorded by many leading shares. Extreme advances, however, were shaded or lost as speculators took home some of their profits.

Inflationary enthusiasm apparently was unabated. The British pound sterling showed an overnight gain of around 5 cents at a cable rate of $4.19. European gold currencies followed sterling closely. The dollar improved a bit in late trading. Wheat, corn and cotton followed a narrow range. Secondary bonds again pointed to higher price levels.

Aside from the intense interest in the continued weakness of the dollar, markets were watching closely governmetal activities in behalf of the farmer. Increased purchasing power of the agriculturalists of the country, it is contended by economic observers, will be highly important in confirming the recent strength of commodities and stocks.

COTTON PRICES RULE HIGHER

NEW YORK, June 20.—Cotton futures opened steady, 6 to 8 points higher in response to higher Liverpool cables and also on the advance in foreign exchanges. July, 9.28c; October, 9.58c; December, 9.73c; January, 9.80c; March, 9.95c; May, 10.07c.

The higher opening of the stock market attracted additional buying later and July sold up to 9.35c and December to 9.76c, or 11 to 12 points net higher. This advance encountered considerable realizing as well as some scattered southern selling, however, and prices eased 5 or 6 points from the best. At the end of the first hour, July was ruling around 9.30c, with the general list steady at net advances of 5 or 6 points on active positions.

Volume tapered off after the early buying had run its course and prices eased slightly under realizing and scattered selling influenced by improving prospects for rains within the next few days in West Texas, and reactions in sterling exchange. At midday the marekt was quiet with prices ruling around 4.27 for July and 9.68 for December, or about 3 to 4 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, June 20.—Cotton, 17,000 bales, including 6,200 American. Spot in fair demand; prices 5 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.96; good middling, 6.66; strict middling, 6.36; middling, 6.21; strict low middling, 6.06; low middling, 5.86; strict good ordinary, 5.66; good ordinary, 5.36. Futures closed quiet and steady. July, 5.93; October, 5.93; December, 5.95; January, 5.96; March, 6.00; May, 6.03.

GRAINS REACH NEW HIGHS

CHICAGO, June 20.—Despite some moisture relief and lower temperatures northwest, grain prices advanced early today, with corn and oats reaching fresh top records for the season.

Traders gave particular attention to the fact that New York quoted British exchange at the highest point since suspension of the gold standard. Opening unchanged to ¾ higher, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started ¼ to ⅞ up, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Enlarged selling on wheat price advances led soon to reactions.

Downturns that ensued carried both wheat and corn to well below yesterday's finish. Rye also dipped after having emulated corn and oats in attaining a new top price record for the season. Many grain traders showed a rather pronounced disposition to take profits on holdings. Provisions reflected upturns of hog values.

PRICE INDEXES CONTINUE TO RISE

By LEWIS HANEY,
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, June 20.—The reactionary movement in the security markets last week merely increases the interest with which business statistics are being examined. I therefore present a condensed summary of the chief developments which have come to light of late.

The more favorable aspects are as follows:

1—Commodity price indexes continue to rise, a number having touched new highs. The majority of changes in a list of sensitive commodity markets are still upward, and have been for 10 consecutive weeks.

PRODUCTION GAINS

2—Industrial production continues to increase. Composite weekly indexes have risen to new highs.

3—Railway carloadings, which reflect both production and distribution, made a further advance last week. The trend of carloadings is usually upward until the fall, but recent gains have exceeded the usual seasonal rise. The heaviest gains were in the miscellaneous group, largely manufactures.

4—The volume of trade, which had been relatively backward, has also begun to advance.

MACHINE TOOL ADVANCES

5—Machine tool orders increased again in May. This is a good barometer.

6—Business failures have decreased and were 30 per cent below the corresponding week of 1932. They were also less numerous than in 1931.

7—Bank statistics indicate a tendency for deposits to increase in the interior. Member bank reserve balances have increased $77,000,000 which seems to insure a continuation of the ease in money rates.

8—Money in circulation has decreased $44,000,000 in the face of increased business volume and prices, and larger speculative activity. This suggests a greater rate of turnover of money.

9—Congress has adjourned. The uncertainty as to pending legislation has thus been removed for a while.

UNFAVORABLE TRENDS

The less favorable aspects of the business situation are as follows:

1—The prices of many commodities in the sensitive primary markets lost ground during the week.

3—The international conference apparently is deadlocked on the question of money stabilization.

4—Of course, we must add that the uncertainty as to the value of the dollar, both at home and abroad is as great as ever.

The general feeling now is that come what may we are launched upon a program of inflation and public works, which is designed to keep the dollar down, prices up, and stimulate industry and employment. That much at least is certain.

While some still have misgivings as to the final outcome, the party is on, and we are all invited. Obviously, the best thing for the present is to participate. Those still out of work may demand employment as the new postoffices bridges, etc., get under way. Business men may push sales. Those with idle money may well put it to work, for, despite the rise in prices already seen many commodities and stocks seem likely to go still higher.

Idle money gathers no moss these days!

REFINERS SEEK SUGAR 'PLAN'

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Representatives of domestic sugar refineries conferred today with Dr. John Lee Coulter, member of the Tariff Commission delegated by Secretary Wallace to plan for applying trade agreement features of the farm act, in an effort to stabilize sugar prices.

Domestic refiners have sought during the last year an investigation of sugar duties by the commission, hoping for an increase in the differential on the duties for raw and refined sugars. They claim they have lost a large portion of their business to newly established refineries in Cuba.

Today's conference was a prelude to a general meeting of representatives of all sections of the sugar industry next Tuesday.

In the last seven years numerous refineries have been erected in Cuba and from minor exports of sugar in the refined form 10 years ago, Cuba is now annually exporting in a refined state a large portion of the sugar it sells in this country.

Reserve Members' Deposits Expand

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The condition statement of weekly reporting member banks on June 14 shows increases for the week of $224,000,000 in net demand deposits, $36,000,000 in loans and investments and $73,000,000 in reserve balances. Decreases of $12,000,000 in time deposits and $7,000,000 in borrowings from reserve banks are reported. Holdings of government securities were off $23,000,000.

Loans on securities totaled $3,798,000,000, an increase of $56,000,000. All other loans amounted to $4,761,000,000, a decrease of $8,000,000.

Daily Oil Output Off 63,806 Barrels

TULSA, June 20. — Domestic crude oil production during the week ended June 17 averaged 2,732,867 barrels daily, a drop of 63,806 barrels daily from the previous week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

CHAPTER XXX.

The "pulpul" or grass skirt worn by the native women in Melanesia is usually made in two panels, one front and one back, leaving the thighs exposed. In Awar, the front apron is made of two tiers, reaching to the knees; and the back apron, very bushy and composed of two or three tiers, stops halfway between knees and ankles. Worn very low on the hips, this gives a beautiful, most elegant, bustled effect, and switches gently with every lithe step of the slender figure.

I bought a new pulpul for a few sticks of trade tobacco. But it wouldn't go around me, a fact which caused shrieks of merriment from the crowd.

When this hilarious interlude had died, the planter's wife looked down in response to a timid tug at her hand, a pleading little dark face besought "Teep!" I had suspected my friend's uncommonly white and even teeth; for, having lived for some time among Australians, I had discovered that false teeth were the usual equipment. Without hesitation she lowered her full set of store teeth. Although she had done the miracle for the benefit of this company often before, there arose another gale of delighted, amazed, fearful shrieks. With thumb and forefinger many attempted to pull down their own blackened teeth. Ridiculous as it sounds, in this ability to take out her teeth, this white woman in head-hunting territory had a very real hold on the encroaching natives. To them it was supernatural, it placed her apart from their own kind, empowered her with a tambaran for which they had a wholesome respect and fear.

A BOAT RIDE

Across the bend of the river lay another outskirt of Awar village. A little mary volunteered to take us there in an outrigger. Grateful for the cool shade, we waited while she fetched her canoe. The river wound a lazy, serpentine course, overhung with palm and rank jungle. Ginger flowered in scarlet amid the dark green along the banks; in the water was a fishing stockade, with an opening just wide enough for an outrigger. As we waited, we saw a young kanaka woman puffing at a china trade pipe and regarding us without concern. We spoke to her in pidgin, but she seemed not to understand, and we knew that she spoke only her own tribal tongue. However, she smiled at us, and seating herself on the prone trunk of a tree dangled her feet in the water as happily as a child. But well she knew the language of a gift, and took our proffered cigaret. A native never says "thank you," nor, for that matter, do they seem to know the quality of gratitude. A gift is phlegmatically taken for granted.

The outrigger was a tippy affair—a narrow, hollowed-out tree-trunk. The opening in it was just wide enough for me to squeeze in my feet, and I sat gingerly on a cross-pole. But the canoe was a work of art; around it ran an elaborately carved border, and the bow was a realistic alligator's head. The paddle, too, was topped with a wooden alligator. I sat very still, for I knew that the river harbored these flesh-and-blood creatures.

TAKES PICTURE

On the far bank, behind the bend, waited the entire other village—a small replica of the luluai's. They knew, somehow, of our coming. A kanaka loves to have his picture taken. I selected some of the best—that is, worst-looking—among the men, and stood them in a row, whereupon there ensued among them much nudging and laughter and back-handed wiping of filthy mouths. But were we posed and ready? No. One of them beckoned to his little mary, and as she approached he extracted from his mouth a disgusting, half-masticated mass of betel-nut. She obligingly cupped it in her hand. I snapped the picture, and she gave her lord back his cud.

The shadows were lengthening, and regretfully we turned to go. Hanging from a roof-pole I saw a pandanus woven basket, and over its edge protruded five little pinky-brown toes. I examined it more closely, and found therein a brown cherub sleeping and sucking his fist in white-baby fashion.

"'Im 'e pickaninny belong you?" I asked of a bright-eyed mary standing close.

"Yassah! 'Im 'e belong me!" she said shrilly and very proudly.

I barely touched the toes with my cheek. "Now me tink 'im 'e good fella too much!" And she was pleased in quite the universal manner that I liked her baby.

One and all they saw us off. By now the river ran pink with sunset. As our outrigger rounded the bend we called: "Yacoq!" (Farewell!)

The answering "Yacoq!" drifted on to us, though I could not see them any more.

'RIVER OF DEATH'

The very name of the Sepik River stirs vague, fantastic imaginings in the minds of the white people living in New Guinea, even if they never expect to go there. It is a Never-Never, a goblin-haunted region, like a bad land of a fairy tale. It is sometimes luridly spoken of as "The River of Death;" in Rabaul, however, where many irreverencies occur, we call it the "Septic." Stray recruiters, D. O.'s on patrol, and rare explorers into the Sepik country sometimes come back with tales of a pigmy race.

Natives of the Sepik country cling steadfastly to their story that a race of people with tails dwells back in the jungle. There are no monkeys of any kind in New Guinea, so they have not confused men with apes. On the theory that where there's smoke there's fire, I have heard anthropologists in the South Pacific say that probably some tribal custom gives the appearance of natural tails. Natives can think of curious ways to render themselves different from their neighbors. But this particular mystery of a tailed human being has yet to be fully explained.

So on the schooner Nuloa we set out again, early in the morning, for Marienberg, that lone mission station in the very heart of darkest New Guinea, on the bank of the Sepik River. I don't know just why, but for me the Sepik had reared itself as the most desirable of all spots to achieve. Perhaps because it had seemed impossible for me to get there. Only two white women had ever traveled up the Sepik River before me. I should have liked to be the first woman to enter the Sepik, instead of the third, but even this gave me a thrill.

THE LAST OUTPOST

From Awar, we sailed along the coast of New Guinea for several hours, when, at his plantation, we dropped Elking. Jim and Brearly, alas, we should soon drop at Marienberg. By this time we could dimly see the mouth of the Sepik, could just make out an outline of what looked like upright poles of a far-stretching stockade, half a day's sail away. Of us all aboard the Nuloa only Jim and Brearly had ever been up the great river. And yet there was an undercurrent of excitement in every one of us, even the mate. Jim had been all the way up to Ambunti, three hundred miles or so, the last outpost of the white man's world, and the only other government station in the Sepik country save Marienberg. The Ambunti station had been established only a few years before. There three white men hold their own against the fiercest of New Guinea head-hunters by grace of the superstitious awe that a white man inspires in the unsophisticated native. I don't know why men chose this voluntary exile; there is pitifully little in it for them materially or otherwise.

At Ambunti, Jim says, it thunders much of the time; the world seems continually to growl, and lightning flashes with maddening frequency. It wrecks the nerve of whites stationed there. I know that at Ambunti the government station is built on a high hill at the end of a range of mountains. The wind sweeps around this range with terrific force, an Ambunti is caught as if in a pocket. Almost nightly thunder and lightning storms occur, accompanied by wind so violent that government officials have been known to sit on the hillside in the driving rain watching this lightning play around their bungalows and expecting to see, when the next flash came, that some swaying house had been blown down the hillside. The bungalows have to be made secure to the ground with ropes of lawyer vine.

About 30 miles below Ambunti, in the bend of the stream, is a large whirlpool; here the mighty river is 600 yards wide, and at times the whirlpool almost reaches from bank to bank. Neither boat nor canoe ever attempts to break through it, but at times the natives allow their canoes to be carried around the outer fringes while they spear fish. On one occasion the schooner Gabriel, caught in the whirlpool, was carried completely around the circle before being able to break clear.

QUEEN ELIZABETH SIGNING THE DEATH WARRANT OF MARY STUART

Elizabeth (1533-1603), profound Protestant ruler of England, had Mary, Queen of Scotland, her cousin and political rival, beheaded (1576) on trumped-up charges. Elizabeth followed the bad example set by her father, Henry VIII, who ordered the death of his wife, Anne Boleyn, Elizabeth's mother (1536). (World's History).

THE LAST HOURS OF QUEEN ELIZABETH

The duel on the seas between England and Spain, started by Queen Elizabeth, ended in the defeat of the Spanish Armada. Under Elizabeth's reign the seeds for England's power on the seas and in the colonies were sown. Upon her death, James, King of Scotland (son of Mary Stuart), succeeded to the English throne as James I, thus uniting the two countries. Elizabeth was the last of the Tudor dynasty which ruled England from 1485 to 1603. James I, was the first of the Stuarts.

Left: James I, (ruled 1603-1625) believed in divine right and absolutism, and declared himself the source of laws, antagonizing the parliament. He made peace with Spain, stopped English piracy, fostered colonization and commerce. His son and successor, Charles I., continued the autocratic policy, which resulted in armed conflict with the parliament, Charles' subsequent defeat and death by exeeution (1648). (World's History).

FINISHING THE PAPER (Sci).

To give a glossy, smooth surface to paper coming from the paper machine, it is passed through the calender. This consists of a series of vertically arranged alternating iron-and-paper-(or cotton) rolls, R, (right). For a linen finish, the paper is led through the plating machine, which makes an impression of a sheet of linen on it. Other finishes similarly obtained are: burlap, lawn, antique, suede, ripple, wave, vellum, etc. To obtain an even semi-absorbing surface for printing or a non-absorbing surface for writing (or transparency for wrapping, etc.) the paper is coated with a mixture of six to twelve ingredients such as pigments, glue, wax, metals, mica, gums, casain, borax, etc., according to the purpose the paper serves. Below, right: The paper from the reel, P, is led through a tank, C, (containing the coating material), over rollers, F, B, D, G, and then through reciprocating brushes, E. After drying, the paper is cut to convenient sizes and stored in reels or sheets.

THE UNIVERSE

The galactic system with all its stars and nebulae occupies a disc-shaped space of about 300,000 light years in diameter and 10,000 light years in thickness. It may have the structure of a spiral nebula and outside globular star clusters are either receding or approaching it. The known stellar systems outside of the galaxy are: the great nebula in Andromeda (above left), about 1,000,000 light years distant from earth; the star cluster in the Sagittarins (above right), about 700,00 light years afar and the Magellanic Clouds, about 100,000 light years away. (Fath: Astronomy). (Science).

YOUR NEWSPAPER AND HOW IT IS MADE (Cont'd.) (Science)

Newspapers are printed exclusively on rotary presses, big, intricate, expensive machines.

1. A view of a rotary press showing a multitude of parts and great dimensions.

2. The working principle of the rotary press. The paper sheet, A, from the reel passes between the plate cylinders, B, to which are fastened the cylindrical printing plates and the impression cylinders, C, and is printed on both sides. Feeders, D, contain ink which is transmitted evenly upon the printing surface of the plates on B by the rotation and vibration of the ink-rollers, E.

3. A view of the paper—reel end of the Goss-type rotary press. Each requires 75 h. p. for operation and takes five reels of paper (@ 1600 lbs.) during full production. Each machine has ten printing cylinders accommodating eight plates each, so that 80 newspaper-size pages can be printed at one time. The full output of each press is 1,440,000 printed pages in one hour. Dividing this figure by the total number of pages contained in the newspaper, the result is the hourly production. Example: Production of a 20-page newspaper per hour and press = 1,440,000/20 = 72,000 complete newspapers.

4. The delivery end of the rotary press. A conveyor carries the ready-folded papers to the shipping department, where they are bound into bundles and dumped into trucks to be carried to railroad terminals and to distributing places from which newsboys rush them to the readers.

5. One of the alert newsboys selling his papers. In future, maybe, the paper will tell about him, a foremost citizen, who worked his way from the news-stand to fame. Ask Ex-Governor Al Smith or Father Cox about it.

Investigation Starts at Home

Now, with all these investigations going forth and sideways there is no reason why we shouldn't amuse ourselves at home the same way.

Here is the list for the better prosecuting attorney to ask the lovable husband on the front porch:

Question—Do you recall an informal meeting of the preferred customers of Joe's Hamburger and Billiard Emporium?

Answer—A snort.

Q.—Why did you take a month's vacation last year when I didn't get a new hat?

A.—A grunt.

Q.—Does mamma still park herself in the rumble seat on week-end trips?

A.—A sneeze.

Q.—Are you going to get a job or do you consider that a minor exception?

A.—Shoulder shrug.

Q.—Why don't you like my brother Eddie?

A.—Witness is asleep.

Q.—Is your family any better than mine?

A.—No sound but squeaking of porch rocker.

Q.—The Smiths have bought a new car. Ours is terrible.

A.—A sneer.

Q.—How about going to the movies for a change?

A.—A slap at a mosquito.

Q.—Why don't you wake up and say something? Mamma's coming over in a few minutes.

A.—This time the witness is no longer in contempt of court. By advice of guardian counsel and angel he jumps up and hollers, "Let's go to the movies."

Relief for Car Riders

The Proposed Subway Is the Only Feasible Plan For Improving the Condition of the Straphangers.

Objections of one kind or another are being raised to the carefully thought out plan of the City Transit Commission for the construction of a subway.

But the objectors offer no alternative plan to improve the condition of the straphangers.

Are they to be allowed to continue to suffer indefinitely?

Pittsburgh has spent many thousands of dollars in the construction of boulevards, in the widening and re-paving of streets, and in the establishment and maintenance of traffic signals—mostly for the benefit of motorists.

Comparatively little has been done to furnish relief for car riders.

Yet only 30 per cent of all persons entering the Golden Triangle in normal times come in automobiles.

The car riders, neglected and ignored, are enormously in the majority.

Let something be done for them.

A Good Appointment

Mayor Herron Continues the Wise Policy of Keeping the Zoning Board Out of Politics

In naming Eugene L. Connelly for the vacant place on the Zoning Board Mayor John S. Herron has made an excellent appointment.

Mr. Connelly's life-long residence here, and his intimate knowledge of the city and of public affairs generally, give him an insight into conditions in the city and knowledge of its requirements. These will stand him in good stead in his new office.

No less gratifying is the fact that Mr. Connelly is free from political entanglements and obligations and so is in position to pursue an independent course in matters that come up before the board.

Mayor Herron deserves credit for continuing the wise policy of his predecessors of keeping the Zoning Board out of politics.

J. W. Cree, Jr., who because of seniority of service has been appointed chairman, is well equipped for the position. He has served as a member of the board ever since its inception 10 years ago.

There is every indication that the Zoning Board will continue to guard the interests of the residents and property owners.

Ready to Proceed

The Flood Reservoir Project Is Admirably Suited for the Federal Public Works Program.

Encouraging news comes from Washington.

High officials of the government look favorably on the proposal that $60,000,000 of federal funds be appropriated under the terms of the National Industrial Recovery act for the construction of a system of reservoirs on the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela to protect Pittsburgh and the Ohio Valley from floods.

Some are disposed to recommend that the project be indorsed and work started at once. They talk of making a model job of it to show what can be done.

The project is well suited to such procedure. It will fit admirably into the federal public works program.

In the first place, the subject has been studied for so many years, not only by the engineers of the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh but also by United States Army engineers, that little or no time will be required for work preliminary to the actual breaking of ground for the reservoirs. The surveys have been made, the blue prints have been printed; pick and shovel men can be engaged almost immediately after the order to proceed has been signed.

It is admirably adapted for the employment of a large number of laborers. The Flood Commission estimates that the reservoirs will give 46,000 men 250 days of work.

Another advantage is that the project will benefit a large section of the nation. The entire Ohio Valley all the way to the Mississippi suffered from the flood of a few months ago. This must have done much to win the administration's favor for the protective program.

Happy Hunting Grounds

Pennsylvania Improves Its Position as One of the Best States for Sportsmen.

The State Game Commission reports that 44,630.7 acres were conveyed to the Commonwealth and became part of the sportsmen's domain in the year ended June 1.

The state game lands now total 364,772 acres, or 569 square miles, which is about the area of Greene County, and considerably exceeds the area of many counties in Pennsylvania.

Furthermore, the Game Commission has 82,358 additional acres under contract to purchase. Besides, the Legislature passed at its last session a law directing County Commissioners to offer for sale to the Game Commission lands seized for nonpayment of taxes. The tax-delinquent area in Pennsylvania, including forest and cleared land, now approximates 1,446,000 acres.

If this goes on much longer, a large part of Pennsylvania will be turned into hunting grounds.

It is commendable from the hunters' standpoint that Pennsylvania's position as a paradise for sportsmen should be thus improved.

But, after all, all the people are not hunters, and it seems fair to ask if this movement may not be carried to an undesirable extreme.

Laurels for Pittsburgh

Not Oratory Alone Has Brought the National Real Estate Trophy to the City

Having been won thrice by representatives of Pittsburgh, the "Home Town Speech Contest" cup of the National Association of Real Estate Boards has become the permanent property of the local real estate board.

L. W. Monteverde won it in Milwaukee in 1914, C. Edward Keck at Los Angeles several years later, and J. Meryl Silk at the Chicago convention last week. Congratulations to them and to the real estate board!

Without detracting a whit from the credit due the speakers for their oratory, which must have been worthy of the highest praise to be thus honored, it may be added that they hardly could have won the prize if they had not had something well worth while to talk about—and that was Pittsburgh.

The city, too, gains laurels in the victory.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 20.—The ache for a return of good old-time vaudeville assails me every time I pick up Variety—which is once a week—and see how the two-a-day has become a mere dribble in the theatrical flow. Vaudeville orchestrated a timbre allegro in the theater the talkies fail to supply.

There was a jovial democracy, a gaseous jocularity, about it no other entertainment offered. Groundling stuff, to be sure, but deathless. There are many new legitimate stars of the past few years I remember but vaguely. But who forgets the Elizabethan hilarities of Melville and Higgins?

Flo Adler, to many, sang with more spirit than Lily Pons, and we have stood in the rain to see Cross and Josephine and never turned an eye to behold Lunt and Fontanne. Cliff Gordon, exploding like a bottle of pop, and Bert Leslie's low-browed torsions as a piano mover, have no rivals today.

Nat Willis rolling out of an awning with his blacked-out teeth and tatter of rags was the funniest comedian alive. And has the world ever produced a more polished monologist than Julius Tannen? Or daintier cross-fire patter than that of Brice and King? The time is ripe for vaudeville to stand and deliver.

Man and boy, I heard Lewis and Dody's nonsensical cheedabeechie one hundred times without boredom. I'd walk to the Battery to hear them again. What memories! Joe and Ben Welch. Raymond and Caverly. Lyons and Yosko. Ed Wynn and his hats. The incomparable red-head, Irene Franklin, chanting sun-bonnety songs. Tears with Sarah Padden in "The Clod." Frank Tinney bedrunken with syllables. The Dooleys. Master Gabriel. Whiting and Burt. The collar ripping Bert Fitzgibbons and slapable Bert Wheeler. The Three Keatons with Buster on a school strap. Doyle and Dixon. Alf Loyal's Dogs. Merle's Cockatoos. Life needs such savour, such emotional hoops, as never before.

The first sidewalk cafe on a grand scale caught on with a bang. Known as "Chatham Walk" on the Vanderbilt avenue side of a staid hostelry by that name, dinner and luncheon reservations must be given several days in advance. There is the pavement-wide awnings, tubbed trees, white-aproned garcons and all familiars of al fresco dining on a Paris terrasse. Even to seltzer bottles of blue glass!

In the workroom of a leading tailoring establishment hangs a coat discarded by a hunchback. Among workers and the proprietor himself the garment is regarded as an omen of good luck. It belonged to the first customer, now dead. The only interruption to a steady trade was for 12 days when the coat was lost. Retrieved from a ragman, business bloomed again. Or so it's averred.

Visitors to the dark-timbered coiffure salon on the rue Castiglione side of the Paris Hotel Continental will miss—Godspeed to goodman in the dark!—Col. Barney Flood, whose stop every afternoon for a shave was as well timed as Berry Wall's strut to Rumpelmayer's with his Chow. Although Barney's glance had all the potted wisdom of Scotland Yard, it was difficult to imagine him a detective. Or as a one-time harness-bull in New York. He seemed more the retired banker or leisurely connoisseur roaming the Louvre and Luxembourg or attending elderly classes at the Sorbonne.

Col. Flood first showed me the low-ceiled bal musees in infamous rue de Lappe. In one accordion-orchestrated dive where men dance hatted a pugnacious Apache type butted through a group of waltzers and was toted out limp. "It's always dangerous," observed Barney, "to lead with the chin."

Lucius Beebe is the best dressed exponent of the art of journalizing. That is after nightfall. A product of Boston with a patina of Back Bay accent, he has a special flair for natty effects in tails and dinner jackets. His evening ties are a succession of correct points, and his sawed-off vests set even such horizontal weskitists as Tommy Manville to teeth-gnashing. He was selected by The Players for a New Orleans gentleman role in the "Uncle Tom" revival.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There is no black.
There is no white.
There is no absolute wrong.
No hundred per cent right.
There is only gray—only a mixture of goodness and badness.

And your whole life, as well as the life of your weak and erring neighbors, would be immensely simplified and glorified if you would accept that fundamental, spiritual fact.

But you won't.

You won't, because you've been taught it isn't so—and you still refuse to accept evidence to the contrary.

As a tiny child you were taught that there were only two classes of people, and two kinds of behavior—Good People and Bad People; Good Behavior and Bad Behavior.

How were you to tell them apart? There would be no difficulty about that, they assured you. Badness and Goodness were so different that anyone with a clear conscience could tell them. All you needed to do was to keep your own conscience clear. Then, when you met a Bad Person, you'd know him quick as scat, and hate and despise him; and if you met a Good Person, you'd know her just as certainly, and love and respect her as she deserved.

Could anything be easier?

No, nothing could be easier, as mamma and papa outlined it. Nor did it ever occur to your young mind that Life wouldn't run according to their simple specifications. Even now, though you've long since seen a thousand proofs that mom and dad were just fairy-taleing, you're still trying, probably, to make things run per schedule.

And of course it would be perfectly dandy if things would. What a snap life would be, and what a lot of trouble we'd be saved, if we could classify people like that! But we can't. And we'll only waste our time and break our own hearts, as well as the other fellow's, if we keep on trying.

For Humans aren't built that way.

People aren't made just good, just bad.

They're made mixed.

And the longer and the harder they live, the more mixed they become.

Remember Ella Wheeler Wilcox's famous verse. How does it go? Something like this:

"There is so much good in the worst of us,
"And so much bad in the best of us,
"That it ill behooves any of us
"To find fault with the rest of us."

You doubt that? You're quite sure that you've known Perfectly Good People and Utterly Bad Ones? You think of that fellow you signed a note for—that girl you helped when she was caught in such a jam—that—

Stop thinking of them and their ungrateful acts. If you want to prove this argument, all you need to do is to THINK OF YOURSELF. Have you the courage to do it; to analyze your own behavior honestly, fearlessly? You have? Then go to it.

Think of the noblest thing you ever did. Was it really 100 per cent bright and good? Wasn't there just a little show-off conceit, a little selfishness, maybe a little laziness and cowardice, mixed in with all that righteousness?

Gwan; 'fess up! You're with friends! You know darned well there was. Try as you might, you've never been able to be Perfectly Splendid at any one moment. Always your Big Gestures were mixed up with a lot of little secret squirmings and schemings which weren't so good.

However, things balance, thank goodness! You've done some pretty mean things, too, haven't you? But wasn't there many a decent impulse mixed in with that meanness? Sure there was!

THEN IF THAT'S TRUE OF YOU—WHY NOT GIVE THE OTHER FELLOW CREDIT FOR THE SAME DECENCY?

The Human Side of the News

The British House of Lords Plans to Regain Some Of Its Power—Eskimos Going Modern—Radios in the Arctic

By EDWIN C. HILL

INTERESTING news that the British House of Lords plans to regain some, at least, of the old power of which it was divested by Lloyd George and the Liberals back some 20 years ago. It is purely ornamental now, with almost no legislative power whatever. But in many ways it is one of the most fascinating assemblages in the world.

It occupies the most beautiful chamber anywhere in the world—all gold and crimson and rich with tradition. As Clair Price, clever chap, with an eye for the picturesque and the beautiful, wrote so vividly recently in the New York Times, it is "all old Gothic, old oak, old leather and old peers, in a richly harmonious setting of the crimson of the long benches, the dull gold of the walls, and the wonderful old stained glass filtering sunshine through the high windows." This gilded chamber belongs to the old England, stately old England, of old trees, old parks and old castles—a stately old England which seems most tragically to be breaking up and falling to ruin, and yet without the slightest benefit to the common man or to the poor.

When one sits in the House of Lords one's mind goes back to rows of dark ancestors, glaring down from massive gilt frames; to an old Duke rumbling vaguely in the vast depths of an old leather armchair, with one gouty foot supported on a stool, and a great staghound stretched out in front of the open fire. The hundred peers or so who attend any ordinary session of the Lords are not all old men. A few are gigantic silver-haired old boys on antiquated legs, who totter in to sit with their top hats tilted forword over their eyes, dreaming that they are asleep in the House of Lords and waking presently to find that it is so.

* * *

Thrones Stand In Chamber

A FEW others are youngsters with apple cheeks and beautiful blue eyes, up from Eton or Harrow, or the universities. In between are the great lawyers of the country, some of the foremost politicians and an assortment of bankers and industrialists. At the front of the lovely crimson chamber are the actual thrones of Great Britain, full-sized, canopied thrones for the King and Queen and a smaller throne for the Prince of Wales. When the King attends a session the whole chamber is gorgeous with robes of scarlet and ermine.

It is one of the most arresting spectacles in the world as one looks down, armed with a ticket from the British foreign office from the carved oak benches of the press gallery, to reach which one climbs long flights of curving steps. When the King is not present, the lords are less gorgeous, showing up in morning coats or ordinary business suits.

And as one looks on and listens, high up in the ancient gallery, one hears a low droning murmur, such as bees make in the sunshine—the lords at work. Poised on the edge of the crimson woolsack is the lord chancellor, with his full wig and his black robe. Here and there is a stray bishop with balloon-like sleeves of white lawn. The clerks wear barristers' wigs. It is all rather medieval and intensely interesting to an American eye.

Reports Eskimos Are Going Modern

THE four-masted schooner, C. S. Holmes, flying the house flag of the Midnight Sun Trading Company, is back from the Arctic with strange news of the Eskimos. The skipper, Capt. Johnny Backland, who is also president of the trading company with the romantic and alluring name, told Alan Sherwood of the Seattle Times that the little brown brother up among the Northern Lights and the ice floes is going modern with a rush.

Capt. Johnny Backland has a mighty interesting job for these days. Once a year he loads his big schooner with all sorts of modern, white man's dewdads and trinkets and sails up to Alaskan waters to dicker for furs, walrus ivory and whalebone. He sails the schooner into a cove of the Alaskan coast and drops anchor. Out from shore comes a fleet of Eskimo kyacks and the plump little brown people pile aboard, eager for trade—men, women and children.

While the Northern Lights flame and flicker, Capt. Johnny trades rifles and ammunition, sugar and flour, bacon and calico, safety razors and rubber boots for the skins of silver fox, sable, mink, marten and polar bear—lovely lustrous things. And the days have passed when Johnny Backland can trade a 10-cent store string of beads for the pelt of a silver fox. Nowadays the Eskimo are keen traders and bargain hunters.

Every Igloo Has Its Radio

THE coast line of Alaska, John Backland says, is just another Main street where no igloo is complete without its radio sets, its flashlights, its portable phonographs and its tailormade cigarets. The consumption of phonographic records and portable machines is terrific. Backland took with him a thousand records and phonographs large and small on this year's trip, and they went like hot cakes.

There is a growing taste for radio, and during the Far North summer radio reception is the best in the world. Johnny Backland sat in an Eskimo igloo in the Arctic, with the little brown people all around him, feasting on seal blubber and listening to a German band that was playing in a Berlin beer hall. The more tubes an Eskimo has in his set the better he likes it, and the louder the squawk the more joy in the dome-like home of frozen snow. Up in Eskimo Land they don't have to worry about the gold standard and the war debts. The depression never got that far north, and business is tip-top.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Your greatest enjoyment is to get yourself comfortably ensconsed in your favorite chair and pass your leisure in reading.

Perhaps your help mate enjoys other diversions.

But you are inclined to be obstinate and so you won't abandon what you think pleases you better, so that your partner may enjoy what she likes better.

Fifty-fifty is a good rule for married folk to keep in mind.

But you say that you don't object to what others do just so that you are not disturbed and no demands are made on you.

Well, that is a selfish position to take, isn't it?

Often members of families leave home at night in order to enjoy the society of kindred spirits.

If they found willing co-operation at home in methods of relaxation and enjoyment, they might remain at home.

It may be true that most of the things that you enjoy are tiresome to others and vice versa.

But you'd find that if you would favor them, they would favor you, and you all would be happier with that sort of co-operation in your family life.
